LODGE MOVES WORLD PROBE OF CONGO CRIME BY LEOPOLD

Wife of Doctor Shot by Boy Chauffeur JUSTIFIES TRAGEDY

Minister's Son Held in $5,000 in Case of Chester, Vt., Physician.

Special to the Boston American.

CHESTER, Vt., Dec. 10.—Following the shooting, probably fatally, of Dr. Chester W. Ray, one of the most prominent young physicians of this part of the State, by Frank Turner, a handsome boy of nineteen and the son of a clergyman, who was employed by the doctor as chauffeur, the residents of this town and neighborhood are revelling in such a diversion of sensation as has not occurred here for many years.

Jealousy on the part of the doctor of the friendship between his pretty wife and Turner, who, as a member of the household, graduated from the high school here last Winter, and a corresponding bitter feeling by Mrs. Ray because of attentions that she alleged her husband paid to her attractive maid, were at the bottom of the tragedy.

The shooting was the culmination of a fist fight between the doctor and the boy in the presence of Mrs. Ray at an early hour yesterday. Mrs. Ray declared to-day that Turner was justified in shooting her husband, as the latter attacked him with an iron bed-post of an operating chair and he feared for self-defence.

Turner, who spent last night in the custody of the sheriff, was to-day arraigned in the District Court, where he waived examination and was committed without bail on a charge of assault with intent to kill. He will be unable to furnish bonds and was locked up. If bail is not furnished to-day he will be removed, it was said, to the Woodstock Jail.

DOCTOR'S CONDITION SERIOUS.

The young man communicated with his father, the Rev. W. F. Turner, of the Maplewood Universalist Church, Malden, Mass., to-day, and by express him to come here and help him in his serious trouble. Turner refused to discuss the matter to-day and when arraigned in court made no statement.

At the Ray residence to-day it was said that the doctor's condition was precarious. One of the bullets struck him in the side and passed entirely through the body. The other bullet did not take effect.

The doctor says that he found Turner in his house after midnight when he had no right to be there, and that the accusations against him are the result of a conspiracy between his wife and the young man to get rid of him.

Mrs. Ray had told Turner that she suspected that her husband was paying attention to the maid employed in the house and when she summoned the young man by ringing an electric bell he hurried to the house with a revolver in his pocket. The boy, according to the woman's story, found her at the foot of a stairway, up which she said her husband had gone after he returned from his late call.

The doctor was called and he came downstairs in his dressing gown. Accusations were made by Mrs. Ray, and the doctor wanted to know what Turner was doing there. A fight ensued between the two men and the doctor got his antagonist down. Mrs. Ray dragged her husband off.

Turner arose and started for the door. More words passed between him and the doctor, and as the young man reached the kitchen door he turned and fired two shots from a revolver which he had had in his pocket. Then he fled to his room, where he was arrested by Sheriff Hood a short time later.

Dr. Ray fell to the floor. Mrs. Ray assisted him to his feet and he was able to walk up stairs. Then he went to the telephone and summoned the police. The strain during the time Dr. Ray was up stairs, however, had been too much for him, he collapsed just as his wife had assisted him to the bed. Two other doctors were summoned and declared Dr. Ray to be in a serious condition.

The Lamplighters' Union of Boston will hold its second annual ball in Odd Fellows' Hall this evening. Strachn's Ninth Regiment Orchestra will furnish music. A concert will be given from 8 until 9 o'clock and dancing will follow.

BRIBE HINT IN LOWELL CONSPIRACY TRIAL

DISTRICT ATTORNEY'S REQUEST THAT JURY BE LOCKED UP DENIED BY JUDGE.

Following the selection of a jury for the trial of two former police commissioners of Lowell and four officials of the Harvard Brewing Company, indicted on a charge of conspiracy in connection with the purchase of liquor by police in that city, District Attorney Sanderson sprung a sensation in the East Cambridge Superior Criminal Court to-day when he declared that he was afraid of bribery in the case, and asked Judge Gaskill to lock the jury up during the trial, as they do in murder cases.

The courtroom was crowded with friends of the prominent men on trial, and when Mr. Sanderson arose and made his request there was a buzz of astonishment in the audience.

"I am afraid of bribery in this case," was the flat statement of the District Attorney, "and I ask that the jury be locked up."

Not Necessary, Says Judge.

There was objection on the part of the counsel for the accused men, and Judge Gaskill decided that such a precaution was not justified. The case then proceeded.

The jury was drawn in forty-eight minutes, with eight challenges by the Commonwealth and six by the defendants. The jurors are:

Counsel for Dow challenged two jurors, counsel for Beals two, and counsel for Jerry two. The jury was then impanelled and Clerk Ambrose read the indictment, to which all pleaded not guilty.

Six Men Indicted.

The men indicted are: Frank B. Dow, ex-police commissioner; La Forest Beals, ex-police commissioner; John Joyce of Lowell, president of the Harvard Brewing Company; Ward B. Holtzway, treasurer of the Harvard Brewing Company; Richard Herman, cashier of the Harvard Brewing Company; Peter J. Enwright, Lowell manager of the Harvard Brewing Company.

The indictment against each of the six men is on six counts of conspiracy. In the first count it is alleged that Dow and Beals, as members of the Lowell Board of Police, conspired together to so conduct themselves as to improperly benefit the Harvard Brewing Company, doing business in Lowell.

The second count charges that they conspired together corruptly to grant licenses to persons designated by the Harvard Brewing Company or its agents.

In the fourth count it is charged that there was a conspiracy by which Dow and Beals should be paid for their services to the brewing company.

Say Considerations Paid.

The fifth count in the indictment charges that it was conspired that Dow and Beals should be paid considerations for granting licenses to such persons as purchased their liquors from the Harvard Brewing Company.

The sixth count charges conspiracy in the allegation that Dow and Beals were paid considerations to cause licenses to be granted to such persons as were designated by the Harvard Brewing Company.

As a result of these indictments, Police Commissioners Dow and Beals were removed from office by Mayor James R. Carney. At first the commissioners refused to comply with the removal by the Mayor, but Judge Hitchcock, in the Middlesex County Superior Court, on May 23 last, sustained the action of the Mayor.

GRAND JURY INDICTS NEW YORK CENTRAL

CRUELTY TO ANIMALS CHARGED; WYMAN LUNCH COMPANY ALSO IN LIST.

Two indictments returned last week by the Suffolk Grand Jury were made public to-day by District Attorney John B. Moran as follows:

The New York Central & Hudson River Railroad Company was indicted for alleged unnecessary cruelty to cattle shipped over its lines.

The Wyman Lunch Company was indicted for not posting in conspicuous places the State laws governing the employment and hours of labor each day for women.

In the indictment against the New York Central there are ten counts in which the corporation is charged with cruelty of cows and calves shipped over its lines in July last. Twelve cows and twenty-seven calves, in a small box car, were forwarded by the Central Vermont Railroad to Palmer, Mass., and there turned over to the New York Central.

The day was excessively hot. Several of the calves were unable to stand, and a number of them died before the car reached Brighton and the stock was unloaded.

In the case of the Wyman Lunch Company the law requires that the hours of coming in and stopping work and the time allowed for dinner and other meals be displayed.

This is the beginning of a crusade on the part of District Attorney Moran to enforce this law.

Bay State Senator Introduces Resolution in Congress Calling for International Investigation of Alleged Atrocities of Belgium's Ruler on Africans----Boston Pastor in Washington Urges Action.

BY BOSTON AMERICAN LEASED WIRE.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—Senator Henry Cabot Lodge to-day introduced a resolution in the Senate asking for an international inquiry into the fearful atrocities that it is alleged have been and are now being committed in the Congo Free State.

3,000,000 Victims to Leopold's Greed.

Dr. H. G. Guinness of London, who is in Boston, declared that more than 3,000,000 natives of that section of Africa had been mutilated, killed or beaten for failure to bring in rubber for the King and his partners.

"One man in Christendom," asserted Dr. Guinness, "can stop the mutilation of the living, the amputation of hands, the frightful maiming of men, women and little children. His name is Theodore Roosevelt and he is President of the United States."

Lodge Speaking for President

It is presumed that Senator Lodge is representing the President in introducing the resolution. The matter has also been brought to the attention of Secretary Root by the Rev. Herbert S. Johnson of Boston, who is here to-day in the interest of the bill.

In a cabled interview with King Leopold of Belgium, who governs the Congo Free State, to-day, he makes an emphatic denial that the reported atrocities are practiced there, declaring that common sense would prevent it, even if a feeling of humanity did not. The King also asserted that he had not one cent invested in the rubber industries of that State and added that he had not got a cent of salary as chief executive of the country in twenty-two years.

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Dec. 10.—In a sensational interview given personally to-day to the correspondent of the Publishers' Press, King Leopold of Belgium denied categorically the reports which have been circulated so widely of atrocities practiced in the Congo. His common sense would have kept him from indulging in cruelties such as those he is accused of practicing, the King declared, even if he was not moved by humanity to do so. "Every possible effort," declared the King, "has been made in behalf of the natives."

The old King also paid a high tribute to

FIRE RUINS PROSPECT HOUSE AT CAMBRIDGE

In a $10,000 fire which destroyed the old Prospect House in Central square, Cambridge, at noon to-day, the Non-Partisan organization found itself burned out of house and home on the day before election. The Non-Partisan property was saved in the main and carried across the street to the offices of Walter C. Wardwell, the Non-Partisan candidate for Mayor. Headquarters were quickly opened in a nearby office.

The fire, which is supposed to have had its origin in the wiring beneath the floor, started in the non-partisan headquarters. It swept up through the building to the roof, parts of the walls tumbling down.

On the ground floor a florist, a barber, an express company and a restaurant were drowned out. The Non-Partisans had all of the second floor. On the third floor all the offices appertain to be tenantless except that reserved for the janitor. On the fourth floor the rooms orw the Central Labor Union and of other unions were completely wrecked.

Theodore H. Raymond owned the property. His loss is said to be fully covered by insurance. The firemen complained of the delay occasioned by a frozen hydrant. Some time was occupied in steaming it out.

John McGowan of Ladder 1 was injured by falling glass, but remained at work. Trolley traffic to and from Boston was held up for an hour and a half in Central Square.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, Dec. 10.—John Bedell, who retired his new partner, Jobbie Walthour, is doing his best to regain the lap lost by accidents to his brother and Hughie MacLean early in the day.

Bedell, fresh from a two-hour sleep, in a great burst of speed, forced his way from the rear to first place only to be passed in the next lap by the persistent Root. Clark, the Australian, after a hot brush with Root, Bedell and Vanoni, forged to the front, holding the lead for several laps. He could not maintain his lead, however, and after gamely attempting to continue the pace resigned his position to the speedy Vanoni, Root and Bedell.

Root Thrown Hard.

After Clark's spurt the pace slackened somewhat, and Root, who closely followed the leader Vanoni, had time to get a bottle of oatmeal water from his trainer. In passing it back to him as the riders passed over the north side of the track he lost control of his wheel and was thrown heavily, fortunately sustaining nothing more serious than a badly scraped knee and hand. A quick application of liniment by his trainer and Root resumed the race almost before the riders had time to repass him. His return was the signal for a new sprint, the plucky rider showing that he cared but little for a few bruises by quickly regaining his place among the leaders.

It was announced from the judges' stand that Krebs and Rupprecht, the German-American team, and Schlee and MacDonald, the National Turnverein pair, were finally out of the race. Rupprecht and MacDonald were in several bad spills in the early hours this morning, and when Schlee, the partner of MacDonald, was injured in the mix-up at the hooden turn at MacDonald lost heart and withdrew from the race.

An outburst of cheering greeted the entrance of the favorite Walthour, who had teamed up with John Bedell of the Long Island team after their partners had received injuries which necessitated their retirement from the race.

Through the accident to their team mates Walthour and Bedell lost a lap. If Krebs and Schlee decided later to team and continue in the race.

MacLean's Fearful Fall.

Hughey MacLean of Chelsea, Mass., partner of Bobby Walthour, was flung in the air, landing among the crowd back of the rails, rounding the track in a fearful spill to-day.

At noon to-day the New York Hospital reported that Hugh MacLean's skull was fractured, and that he was in a very dangerous condition.

MacLean was picked up bleeding and unconscious and Bobby Walthour hurriedly aroused from his sleep and forced to mount his wheel and chase the leaders, who re-

The attack was made upon the Hebrews in the Old Bazaar. The Cossacks were called out. The Jews made a desperate resistance, and the plot was foiled.

Many of the Jews were brutally beaten by the mob, which attempted to fire the shops and stores. In most instances the fires were extinguished in time to prevent serious loss.

American and Americans, especially to President Roosevelt, whom he described as a "splendid type of the splendid American nation."

The correspondent was received by King Leopold in his working room in the royal palace at Laken, outside of Brussels, where the monarch resides. "I am very glad to see a representative of the American press," said the King. "I have great admiration for most of the newspapers of America. I know most of them try to be honest and straightforward, and usually judge an international question on its merits.

"Brilliant Men in Congress."

"Your minister asked me to receive you, and I am happy to have the opportunity of meeting you as a citizen of one free country talking to a citizen of another."

The King continued:

"The whole of America is full of wonder to me. I have often wished to visit the United States to see all for myself, but I fear that dream will not be realized. I am an old man now and no longer have my former strength. There are many great men in America to-day. In the two Houses of Congress are many brilliant minds. Occasionally it has been my good fortune to meet American legislators in Belgium, and I highly prize the remembrance of these gentlemen. Any country might be proud of such men.

"President Roosevelt I esteem highly for his great qualities. He is a splendid type of the splendid American nation."

The conversation turned on the subject of the charges of cruelty and misgovernment in the Congo and Leopold said:

"Painted As a Monster."

"It is curious what satisfaction certain people get spending their lives libelling others. I suppose there is nobody in Europe painted as a monster of such blackness as I am. The words used in picturing me hardly cannot be repeated in polite society. None, it is said, was a saint compared to me. I am an ogre who delights to torture helpless African negroes."

The King mockingly congratulated the correspondent because he had visited him without trembling, and said:

"Let me see if you have a revolver in your pocket to protect yourself. Have you armor under your coat? No? I am surprised. Why do you risk your life in this foolish manner?

"Then it is not true that atrocious conditions exist in the Congo region?" was asked.

"Of course not. People should credit us with common sense, even if they will not allow that humanity exists outside their own country. It would be absurd for me to mistreat the blacks, because no State prospers unless the population is happy and increasing. America knows perhaps better than any other country how true this is.

"Many of the people maligning us are doing so from interested motives. A new society has arisen in the world now called civilization. There are those who make their living by forming associations to protest against everything under Heaven."

"Spreading False Reports."

"Recently a certain American missionary made sensational Congo charges and bitterly attacked me. Some one wrote him protesting against the vehemence of his language, and received a letter from him, saying he had never been to the Congo.

"All his charges were based on hearsay. In this manner many reports as to the Congo circulate, while those who know from first hand evidence magnify parties or incidents into general principles. All about Congo cruelty have been so often repeated that I believe their constant reiteration lends those spreading the false reports finally to believe they are true.

"I do not deny that there have been cases of misdemeanor on the part of Congo officials. Most likely cruelties, even crimes, have been committed. There have been a number of convictions before Congo tribunals for these offences. I do deny that every effort, as far as possible, has not been made to stop the ill treatment of natives, not only by white people, but by natives themselves.

"Stopped the Slave Trade."

"No government in the world has rendered all the grievances, within its own jurisdiction. It is a curious fact that when one country seeks to produce a local millennium it always seizes on territory belonging to some other type of government. The Scripture parable about the beam and the mote is as of much significance to-day as eighteen centuries ago. It would be more pertinent for me to strengthen our hands, hope for the benefit of civilization for all white persons to stand united, than for some to abuse us, which certainly does not augment the respect it is good for the African natives to have for the white race. It would be of more interest to civilization to show the natives that Christians have good feelings for their neighbors.

"Our God says we must all have Christian fellowship one for another. Certainly this principle is not being observed in Africa by those white men who attack the Congo so maliciously."

Leopold dwelt at some length on what has been accomplished in the Congo, saying:

"We have been fortunate in reducing sunstroke in Central Africa by the introduction of vaccine. We have stopped the Congo slave trade and prohibited alcohol from entering the country. We have put steamers on the rivers, have built and are building railways, and introduced the telegraph. Now we are sending out motor cars.

"The Beginning of Our Work."

"All this is only the beginning of our work. By the concessions we have given, and by the concessions to Americans, we have reduced almost to nothing the terrible cost of exploration. I know of only the dreadful diseases known as sleeping sickness, which has desolated a small part of the Congo, but since I came to Europe I have met a high authority who believes that in stamping out this scourge in Africa, human diseases in general will be conquered for thousands of years to come. I am not one of those optimists who look for miracles in this world, but I do make the reality the sanctity of my work.

"It is asserted you are financially interested in the Congo and make a huge fortune there yearly. Is this so?"

Leopold replied: "It is absolutely false. I am the ruler of the Congo, but the property of the country no more affects me personally than the property of any American increases the means of President Roosevelt. I have not one cent invested in Congo industries, and I have not received anything as Congo executive for the past twenty-two years.

"In no simple or form have I bettered myself financially through my relationship with the Congo. On the contrary I have spent large sums of my own in developing the country, sums amounting in the aggregate to millions. I am poorer and not richer because of the Congo. The betterment of the Congo and improvement of the conditions of the natives are the only objects of my efforts.

"See Me as a Boa Constrictor."

"I know there are persons so constituted that they are unable to appreciate such a statement. Their feelings readily smooth, however, facts—charges that I am making my wealth at the expense of rising natives. They see in me the embodiment of the selfishness of the whites in order to put gold into their pockets. Why should I do such a thing? Of what use is money to me?

"I am not in the prime of life. I have passed three-score years and ten on my earthly journey. I cannot take money out of this world, why should I pile up gold for the sake of wealth? I have sufficient for my wants and do not wish for more. I am not a business man. I am a ruler, ambitious only for the welfare of my subjects. It is more to me than money to believe I know that my work in the Congo has not been vainly spent. From a wild, barren region, inhabited by cannibals, the Congo has developed wonderfully, its revenues increasing from nothing to $15,000,000 annually.

"But what has been accomplished is nothing to what will be. There is fabulous wealth in the country. I am making every effort to see that it is properly developed. I cannot conceive anything that will give a greater return than planting rubber tree there. Rubber will be a fortune, and the Congo is the natural rubber region of the world. To care for the future supply of rubber is one of the objects of the new so-called American company, formed to invest money in Congo realty.

"No Pecuniary Interest."

"This is not purely an American corporation, for half the shares are held by Belgium financiers. The new company has two objects, first to prospect for gold mines, and secondly to plant rubber forests on modern principles.

"I have no pecuniary interest in the company, but the Congo has, for, as in the case of all concessions given in the Congo, shares have been allowed free to the government and the dividends it now receives are sufficient to pay the whole interest on the Congo national debt. To me this development of the Congo is by award."

A NATIVE HOUSE AT LOKONGI

CONGO LOBBY IN KING'S INTEREST AT WASHINGTON

The Rev. Hevert S. Johnson, pastor of the Warren Avenue Baptist Church of Boston, and one of the most prominent clergymen in New England, is in Washington today to confer with Secretary of State Root concerning the atrocities in the Congo Free State.

Coincident with the news of his arrival in Washington, come dispatches from that city to the BOSTON AMERICAN, giving a detailed account of an extensive lobby which King Leopold of Belgium, the owner of the Congo, has maintained in Washington for the past two years to forestall any action which the United States might institute relative to this terrible slavery for which Leopold is held responsible.

No Reform from Leopold.

That little in the way of real reform is reasonably to be expected from Leopold is likewise the opinion of one of the correspondents of the world's Congo workers, Dr. Harry Grattan Guinness of London, who happens to be in Boston at the present time, and who to-day addressed a gathering of the Baptist clergymen of Greater Boston at Tremont Temple. Dr. Guinness is acting director of the "Regions Beyond Missionary Union" of Great Britain, of which his father was the founder. He is now on his way from Canada to Peru to resume his work among the Incas.

President Roosevelt, Dr. Guinness said to-day to the BOSTON AMERICAN, can put an end to the Congo horrors with a single word. He has only to pledge that America will send delegates to a new conference of the Powers, at which Leopold will be compelled to sign a new contract or his one-time supporter can be handed over the coals. In fact a President of the United States accused of Leopold's despotism that thereafter the flag of his Congo company should be recognized as the flag of a nation.

"That's where the trouble started. The Powers followed America's lead.

The Congo Lobby.

The facts concerning the Congo lobby in Washington are shown by documentary evidence.

These documents, betraying as they do the sinister methods which have been employed by the agents of Leopold in Washington, will be a startling revelation to those who have labored to have this government take the initiative in putting an end to the barbarities in the Congo.

Following are the instructions to King Leopold's lobbyists in Washington and the promise of reward for success:

"All the State's agents owe obedience to the King's envoy, whose advice they must follow.

"Each of those agents has his special mission. Mr. Sethurn will have to keep up his relations with the [illegible] university circles.

"He lectures, meetings and public discussions he must strive to bring the intellectual and religious public to a just appreciation of Congo affairs.

"He will also have to give publicity to all documents which will be regularly posted to him, with a view to enlightening public opinion.

"Colonel Kowalsky's mission is to enlighten senators and congressmen as to the justice of our cause and to ward off the passing of unfavorable resolutions by them.

"He will be careful not to call at the White House except in case of absolute necessity and not to put forward his title of legal adviser to the state, but his judicial question. He will make no public speeches except after having the Belgian ministerial advice.

"Mr. Wack will continue his work in the press and advocate the state's cause in English and other papers as heretofore. Like in the past, and in the interest of the independence, he will have to act as if he were not in the state's employ, but merely in an impartial publicist.

"The state will send Colonel KOWALSKY to go to Rio. This is an important mission and the fulfilment by Colonel Kowalsky must have a serious consideration.

"If the American government does not make any declaration harmful to the Congo state, and if Congress passes no unfavorable resolutions before the end of next session, Colonel Kowalsky will receive a gratification of £3,000 in three per cent. state bonds in the way of indemnity for the work he may have done between October next and the end of the following session."

ROOSEVELT AWARDED $40,000 PEACE PRIZE

By Boston American Leased Wire.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—President Roosevelt received formal announcement to-day from Norwegian Minister Hange that he had been awarded the Nobel Peace Prize of $40,000 for his work in behalf of international peace.

He has accepted the high honor and decided that the income from the cash prize of $40,000 shall be devoted to founding at Washington a permanent industrial peace committee.

The President, with their consent, will appoint the following as trustees of the fund:

The Chief Justice of the United States, Secretary of Agriculture, Secretary of Commerce and Labor, a representative of labor and a representative of capital.

The council of award met at Christiana, Norway, to-day and formally voted to award the prize to the President. The news was immediately cabled to Minister Hange, who communicated with the President.

Every year the Nobel prizes are awarded to those who have done the most for the advancement of physics, chemistry, medicine, literature and peace.

President Roosevelt receives the prize because of his work in bringing Russia and Japan together in conference which resulted in the signing of the peace treaty between the two nations at Portsmouth, N. H.

Dr. Alfred B. Nobel was the inventor of dynamite, and from its manufacture realized a fortune that at his death amounted to close to ten millions. He designated in his will that the interest of a large part of the fortune should be divided annually among the five men who had done the most in the interest of the great movements that Nobel mankind.

AGENTS OF CORPORATIONS

Because of their action in reporting against a municipal lighting plant as members of the joint committee appointed by the city to investigate the subject in Cambridge, the Municipal Ownership League of that city has denounced the following candidates up for election to-morrow:

Alderman Oliver D. Clary.
Alderman Harry A. Pemilman.
Councilman Russell D. Crane.
Councilman Robert W. Hunter.
Franklin T. Hammond, a member of the present Council, who was also counsel for the lighting plant, was beaten at the primaries.

Augustus Soaper, president of the league, in discussing the candidates whom his organization opposes, to-day said:

"I am not surprised that those men were opposed to municipal ownership when I look into their business and personal connections. Alderman Pemilman is chairman of the committee, and Councilman Crane clerk of Charles W. Waugh, a builder of police and fire apparatus, who has made a fortune out of municipal work.

"Alderman Clary is a member of the wealthy Clary family of East Cambridge, lumber corporations of this section of the country. He is now actively engaged in the same line of business.

"Councilman Crane, candidate for Alderman, is a graduate of Harvard and is a corporation lawyer, now retained by the Boston & Maine Railroad. Hunter, also, is a corporation lawyer and son of Judge John W. Hammond of the Superior Judicial Court of the state. Mr. Hubter is one of the younger well-known corporation attorneys."

DWYER MEN SAY REFORMERS BROKE THE LAW

Citizens' Association Unsigned Political Circulars in Medford Are Attacked.

Friends of Mayor Dwyer of Medford are to-day declaring that in the posting of unsigned circulars, which quoted the Mayor to the effect that he would not again be a candidate for the mayoralty, the name of the Citizens' Association, which is appealing to the voters in the cause of good government, has been made to do duty.

The Dwyer champions are referring every voter to the fact that the good government statutes related to this matter requires that all political posters be signed by their authors.

M. M. Converse of the Citizens' Association states that the unsigned posters, which were distributed Saturday, were at once withdrawn, and similar posters, signed with his name and that of the secretary of the association, are being distributed to-day.

Medford's municipal campaign is becoming more exciting daily. The friends of Mayor Dwyer declare that at the great rally in the Medford Opera House Saturday night his cause was wonderfully strengthened, when he showed by figures taken from the books of the treasurer how he had reduced the city debt by more than $500,000 during his two terms as Mayor.

They assert that after this meeting Colonel N. P. Hallowell, a partisan of the Citizens' Association, came to Mayor Dwyer and told him that he had conducted Medford's finances in a most admirable manner.

Judge Walt of the Superior Court and Daniel W. Lawrence, custodian of Medford's sinking fund, are also quoted in favor of the financial administration of Mayor Dwyer.

"BILL" BERWIN WILL PAY THE JUNKET BILL

Alderman "Bill" Berwin's heart is set on returning the celebrated Confederate flag to New Orleans, and he now squelches the latest move to curb him from the goal of his ambition by announcing that there will be no expense to the city in the return of the flag, but that "Bill" will pay the bill.

Inspired by only the loftiest motives and actuated solely by a desire to cement the bonds of friendship between the city of his birth and the city of his adoption, he says that he will pay the entire expense of the trip out of his own pocket.

Everybody Satisfied.

When the plan of Berwin's was made known at City Hall to-day none of the Aldermen, who expected to go on the trip, offered the slightest objection. Alderman Berwin is deeply pained at the statement of the Mayor that the latter would not allow any of the city's money to be used for a junket.

The word "junket" is offesive to the representative of the vested interests in the Board of Aldermen. In the statement accompanying his threat to pay the bill himself, Mr. Berwin takes a little shot at his erstwhile friend, the Mayor. Says Mr. Berwin:

The Flag Must Go.

"If the unusual zeal and apparent horror in this matter of expending money which has neither been appropriated nor sought, were always evinced in following the course of economical expenditure of money already appropriated, the people of Boston to-day might be bearing a lighter financial load.

"It looks now as if nothing but an armed resistance will keep the citizens of New Orleans from receiving the historic flag which they claim has no historical value, and which they say they do not want. The flag will go back and "Bill" will pay the bill.

TRAFFIC DELAYED BY SNOW AND FOG; HUB IN STORM GRIP

A DRAFT ON THE SAVINGS

Incoming Ships Report Battle With Bitter Cold and Wild Seas.

Forecast Gives No Promise of Relief from Disagreeable Conditions.

Boston is struggling to-day with a snow storm which gives little advantage over the blipping cold of the week just preceding.

Railroad and trolley transportation is still greatly hindered by wet rails, plugged switches and fog. The latter is especially bothersome, as it obscures the signal lights and white flags.

Conditions at sea are no better. Vessels are coming into Boston Harbor with stories of trying experiences in the bitter cold and wild seas. Two overdue transatlantic steamers, the White Star liner Cymric and the Leyland freighter Columbian crept into port to-day, ice-coated and with officers thankful to be safe in harbor.

In the city streets it is very disagreeable underfoot. Teaming is delayed by horses slipping on the snow and the mud-covered pavements. The light snow is ground up into muddy mush, which conserves to cling to the shoes and overshoes of pedestrians and give them a chill.

More of It is Due.

The prospect for immediate clearing is not encouraging, as shown by the local forecast to-day, as follows:

"Rain and warmer to-night. Tuesday rain or snow, followed by clearing and colder. Light easterly winds, increasing and shifting to southerly and westerly."

This storm is now central over Ohio and fringes out over the East generally in snow or rain. The precipitation is light, however.

As a matter of fact, according to the weather man, the storm is hardly formed yet. It is more in the process of forming under way. When it really gets going it will travel this way.

Officers of the steamships Cymric and Columbian, which arrived in port with cold of hard voyages across the ocean, during which time both ships were running constantly through heavy gales and snow, Captain Maurice of the Cymric and Captain told a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter that he never experienced a more trying trip than that just completed.

Dewey's Clerk on Cymric.

On the Cymric were ninety-four saloon passengers and 295 steerage passengers and a very heavy cargo of freight. Among the first cabin passengers were: S. F. Batchelder, Miss Marcia H. Shaw, Miss Elizabeth A. Bliss, all of Cambridge; Mrs. Holmes Hinkley, and her daughters, Misses Barbara and Eleanor, on the Back Bay, Boston; Dr. Lester C. Miles and Mrs. Miller of Worcester, and Jean J. Vanderyer of Washington. Mr. Vanderveer was Admiral Dewey's clerk on the Olympia during the Spanish-American war.

Both the Cymric and the Columbian arrived off Boston Light late yesterday, but on account of the snow storm and thick atmosphere did not attempt to make the run up the harbor until to-day. The Columbian, on account of the mist and snow, did not sight Boston lightship at all. She saw Minot's light first, and Captain Maurice very carefully navigated his ship to Boston light, where he anchored for the night. The Columbian was heavily coated with ice, as she had been running through heavy storms from the time she left the British Channel.

Price of Coal Higher.

Coal of every grade for domestic use is up twenty-five cents the ton over Summer prices. Most of the dealers said to-day that they are rushed with orders. Some of them would not accept any orders for delivery before Thursday or Friday.

The dealers all say that an increase of twenty-five cents over Summer prices, in view of the increased cost of teaming in the Winter, is not at all unreasonable. One independent concern says that he sent out due warning to his trade of the increase, and accepted advance orders for Winter delivery at the Summer rate.

Association and independent dealers today offered furnace coal at $6.50, egg at $6.75, stove and nut at $7 and Franklin at $8.15 the ton.

SOCIAL UNION AND DEACONESS NIGHT

ASK LOWELL LEAGUE TO VOTE FOR FRIENDS

Call on Members to Vote for None but Those Who Are in Sympathy with Objects.

Special to the Boston American.

LOWELL, Dec. 10.—While the Independence League in Lowell has not gone so far as to indorse any of the candidates seeking office in the election about to be decided, Lowell Independence Leaguers are, however, fully informed as to the situation hour. They have been at pains to find out just how the more important candidates stand on the public questions advocated by the League. The support of Leaguers will be withheld from all candidates, no matter for what office, who are known to be either unfriendly or lukewarm.

The committee of inquiry consisted of State President William N. Osgood and local President F. M. Bell. Plans have also been discussed for continuing the work of the League in Lowell.

The attitude of the League concerning the municipal election was expressed in the resolutions, which:

Whereas, many inquiries have been made in relation to the efforts of the Independence League by candidates for municipal offices as to the intended action of the League in the present campaign, it is hereby voted not to officially indorse the candidacy of any person for the mayoralty, leaving every member of the League free to vote on election day as his best judgment may dictate.

We would however, suggest to each member that he carefully investigate the attitude of all candidates toward the fundamental and publicly declared principles of the League in reference to popular government. If any candidates, no matter how prominent or unknown, have not seen fit up to the present time to announce their position upon the subjects and principles of the League, they cannot reasonably expect and ought not to receive the support of our members or of the thousands who are in accord with our principles.

If any candidates up to date have been too timid to declare themselves in favor of the great public questions which we indorse we cannot do otherwise and be true to our course than to withhold our support and indorsement of them, and the records are being made, and they will be certain to hear from us in the future.

ELLIS DENIES HE MADE ATTACK ON MRS. DUFF IN YIDDISH

David A. Ellis, candidate for the school board, to-day gave out a statement denying that he had attacked Mrs. Julia E. Duff, another candidate, in Yiddish, before a meeting of Hebrews. He also denied that he had hired any agent to go among the Jewish people and attack Mrs. Duff on personal grounds. Mr. Ellis said:

"The charges are untrue and are simply another attempt to inject into this campaign a race and religious prejudice. I have addressed meetings of other than an English. I have said nothing which I should hesitate to repeat in the public prints. In fact, all the papers have reported substantially what I have said.

"I have sometimes felt that my course in refusing to withdraw from what Mrs. Duff's school board record is has been unfair to the public, but I have felt that in view of her sex I should refrain from any comment."

Mr. Ellis also denies any responsibility for the advertisement, which appeared in the morning papers to-day:

"Hebrews! There are 15,000 Hebrew children in our public schools. We must have a Hebrew on the School Committee. Vote for David A. Ellis."

ALMOST KILLED BY OIL STOVE SMOKE

William Whitney, sixty years old, of No. 741 Broadway, South Boston, was taken from his room late last night unconscious and almost suffocated by smoke from an oil stove which he had left burning when he went to bed. Whitney was sent to the City Hospital, where he is in a dangerous condition.

Porto Rico in Quality as well as in Name

There are plenty of so-called Porto Rican cigars, many of them made of tobacco grown in the United States; these brands will likely multiply in number since the recent increased cost of Porto Rican leaf. That's why smokers everywhere should be more particular than ever to get the genuine

FIGHT ON SCHOOLS AND LIQUOR ENDS TONIGHT

HOTLY CONTESTED LOCAL CAMPAIGN CLOSES WITH FINAL RALLIES.

The spirited municipal campaign, in which the proposed midnight liquor law and the fight for member of the Boston School Board have been the most hotly contested features, closes with to-night's rallies and the friends of all the candidates will endeavor to get out a tremendous vote tomorrow.

It is believed that there will be between 70,000 and 75,000 votes cast out of the 112,000 registered in the city. There are forty-five candidates for the thirteen places in the Board of Aldermen. The Democratic candidates will address their friends in East Boston this evening and will do what they can to make a clean sweep of the whole ticket. It is not expected that they will elect more than six of the thirteen men. The Republicans have picked out seven Republicans and have asked that the party vote be cast for them.

Out of 149 candidates for the Common Council, 75 are to be elected. The council stands now, 46 Democrats and 29 Republicans. It is thought that the Democrats may lose this election, making the body stand 45 to 30.

Gallivan's Success Conceded.

It is practically conceded that James A. Gallivan will be re-elected street commissioner. The Republicans have not made much of a campaign for their candidate, John G. Savage.

The fight for the vacant place on the school board has between David A. Ellis, the Democratic candidate, and Mrs. Julia A. Duff, who is running as a Democratic Citizens candidate. Friends of Mrs. Duff are sanguine of her election, while James D. Lee, secretary of the Public School Association, in an interview given out to-day in the interest of Mr. Ellis, says that he is afraid that overconfidence may cause his friends to remain away from the polls. Secretary Lee said:

"I certainly do not consider that the school board fight is all over but the shouting. There is great danger of overconfidence upon the part of Mr. Ellis's friends, who do not realize the great amount of secret work which his opponents have been doing.

"If the vote to-morrow comes out Mr. Ellis' election is assured; if it does not, those who have not thought it worth while to make an effort and go to the polls are very likely to wake up Wednesday morning and discover that by their inactivity they have elected Mrs. Duff. To every loyal supporter of our present splendid school board, I would say, allow nothing to keep you away from the polls Tuesday."

The penalty for overconfidence will be a severe one. The full vote of Mr. Ellis's opponents will be cast, and the full strength of his friends is needed, badly needed."

12 O'Clock Advocates Confident.

Those who have advocated the proposed 12 o'clock liquor law, which allows a limited number of hotels to sell liquor an hour longer than the present law, are confident that it will be carried. Mayor John F. Fitzgerald has been active in behalf of the measure. He gave out the following statement to the newspapers to-day:

Permit me to make one suggestion which, I think, will aid materially in adding to the "Yes" vote on the twelve o'clock question. The twelve o'clock law is a local question on the ballot, being at the bottom of the first column, with quite a wide space between it and the name of the last candidate. A great deal of good could be accomplished by a word in your Monday's editions calling attention to the fact that the matter is liable to escape the attention of the voter, unless he examines the ballot very carefully. It might also be wise to refer to the fact that in order for the twelve o'clock law to be effective two "Yeses" must be marked, one permitting the sale of liquors and the other authorizing the extension of the time in which liquors are to be sold in hotels.

Against More Selling Time.

Robert H. Magwood, superintendent of the Massachusetts Christian Endeavor Union, in making an argument against the 12 o'clock law has this to say:

"On the moral aspect of this question some say an hour more or less of liquor selling is not much. Our police records show that arrests for drunkenness among men and women after midnight nearly double 9 o'clock's no. Crimes against chastity and decency, committed while intoxicating drinking, are mostly night products.

"The Massachusetts Bureau of statistics in its investigations of 1895 tries to find out why 96 per cent of our arrests, 75 per cent. of our adult paupers and 51 per cent. of our adult insane are because of the liquor traffic. The tendency of our age is toward a greater restriction of the liquor traffic, and this bill would be directly in opposition to the trend of the age."

At a meeting held at Parnell Hall, No. 3 Welsh street, Dorchester, the following resolutions were adopted:

We, the members of the Parnell Club, do indorse the candidacies of Mrs. Julia E. Duff, Charles S. Sullivan, Roger I. Wolcott and Daniel A. Whelton, and we request all the members of the Irish Parnell Club to vote for those candidates for the School Committee and the Board of Aldermen.

(Signed)
JEREMIAH TRAHEY, President.
WILLIAM HORSFORD, Vice-President.
GEORGE W. LYONS, Treasurer.
JAMES HURLEY, Financial Secretary.
JOHN J. McGRATH, Recording Secretary.

Mrs. Duff, when seen at her home in Charlestown, said to-day:

"I feel confident of victory. I have done all I could for the cause and all I could do. I said about Mr. Ellis. The result is now in the hands of the voters."

TO TEST VOTING MACHINES FIRST TIME TO-MORROW

Voting machines will be used in Boston for the first time at to-morrow's municipal election. Two Ewan machines, the only voting machine adapted to the present arrangement of candidates on the Australian ballot, will be used, one in Precinct 6 of Ward 7 and the other in Precinct 6 of Ward 10, a Democratic and a Republican precinct.

If to-morrow's trial of the machines is satisfactory they will probably be adopted for general use at elections and primaries in this city after the slightly over 500 machines to equip the city, two to each voting precinct.

While the voting by machine to-morrow will, because of the unfamiliarity of the voters with the apparatus, be somewhat slower than the present law, it is claimed by the advocates of the machine that voting can be done more quickly by the new method when the voter has familiarized himself with the trial of the machine seems to bear out this statement.

One advantage of the machine is that its use makes it impossible for a voter to spoil his ballot by voting for more candidates than the law allows. The voter has pressed the lever opposite the names of seven candidates, the eighth number which he is allowed to vote for, he will find it impossible to work the lever, and so on through the ticket.

The total vote of each candidate on the ballot will be registered on the machine immediately after the last man has voted, and consequently it is expected that the returns from the precincts where the machines will be in use to-morrow will be at the office of the election commissioners ten minutes after the close of the polls, or at 4.10.

MAZE OF YULE TIDE PRESENTS AT JORDAN'S

Endless and Brilliant Variety of Attractions for Christmas Shoppers.

ARMY OF CLERKS BUSY

Grown-ups who venture down into the spacious, airy and brilliantly lighted basement of the big Jordan Marsh Company establishment at this Christmas season will discover themselves saying Master Peter Pan, the boy who wouldn't grow up. Folks who go about at this merry season with open hearts and open purses, looking for something suitable for young son or nephew, may here find themselves lamenting the fact that their beards could not at least have been postponed until the opening of this twentieth century.

There is "everything" here in this toy department at the Jordan Marsh store. It seems like boyhood's dreams come true. And there is an army of clerks to meet the public.

Those "Teddy" Bears.

The "Teddy" cinnamon bear, they say in the toy department at Jordan Marsh's, first landed at the Public Gardens several last year, increases in popularity. He may be bought at all prices, from $1.25 up to $25, with any stations at $2.50, at $6 and so on. The "Teddies" are also attracting attention, the latest development being an automobile. These are made of the "mechanical" sort that run without the use, tummy winding up and without motive power. They are bound to be fetching. They may be seen in locomotives, railroad cars, fire engines and trucks.

The prices ranging between 25 cents and $1 on may buy the favorite of floating set. The set includes a great dish pond that needs only the water. It includes such features as boats and launches, fish, dogs and water fowl. Then there are the "Humpty Dumpty" sets, some of them comprising a donkey, a clown, a rabbit, a ladder and a ring, at from 50 cents to $5.

Wonderful Land of Dolls.

The dolls, however, are not in the toy department. At the Jordan Marsh store, be it understood, the doll is not considered a toy. No, indeed! The doll is here some thing real. She is of all sorts, of all styles, of all classes and of all complexions. She ranges from the college-bred, silk gowned creation right up to the strawberry doll, a time substitute for the dear, homely, yarn-haired, lovable old rag doll, which fashionists tell us, always came first in the affections of the little mother.

The sockinette doll, while she succeeds the rag doll in polite society, comes higher. She is the creation of a Pawtucket woman, and she gets her name, according to an authority on dolls, from the fact that the material is knit composition as for ordinary golfing a stocking. They are all there—a headlining array.

Extensive Fur Department.

A day in Jordan's at this season is a delight. How many people in Boston and New England know, by the way, that the Jordan Marsh Company's fur department is the largest in the country outside of the fur department at Marshall Field's in Chicago. This year, the Jordan Marsh fur department lays stress upon the fact that its line is the very finest.

One can buy a splendid squirrel set in the Jordan Marsh fur department for $14.50, or a nobby set in mink or Amerikan sable for $50. From this latter figure there are mink or American sable sets running all the way to $300 or even $400. The wide range of figures indicates the ability of the store to suit every taste and every purse.

Splendid presents for the man who smokes, old or young, can be found on the fourth floor. Fully equipped smokers' tables, in imitation mahogany, may be had at from $2.25 up to $5 or $6. The woman who is wondering just how to strike the fancy of husband, brother or friend need scarcely seek further.

"Just What to Get."

Or, "just what to get" may be answered in the neighboring art department, where there is an exhaustless array of vases, bronzes, fancy china and bric-a-brac, or at the calendar booth on the third floor, where the Maxfield Parrish calendars of the season's sales particularly rich.

The sofa pillow department is telling its own story just now in one of the Washington street windows.

There there is the basket department; waste or scrap baskets at fifty cents; leather baskets, clothes baskets, hampers, glove baskets, and, more beautiful than all and quite as serviceable, work baskets.

If you want a wonderfully complete luncheon basket for the automobile, and you don't particularly mind the price, you may see an ideal outfit at the Jordan Marsh store at $75. Everything, tea kettle, coffee pot, tea and coffee cans, sandwich boxes, cups and saucers and plates, napkins, heater, salt and pepper outfits, and all else that is necessary. Similar outfits, perhaps less elegant but quite as complete, bring $10, $10 or $25.

Gifts for Men Folks.

Down on the street floor there is one section given over to the sort of things that the Men likes to get at Christmas time and that the ladies love to buy for him. Here one may see lounging robes at $2.50, $7.50, $10, $12, $15 and $20, and smoking jackets, bath robes and fancy vests in endless variety.

Then there is the fascinating picture department, better than ever, and the furniture department, rich in complete "sets," tea tables, stools, cricketts and novelties like "cellarettes," also the visitor may be interested in the "auto valet," or mannified bachelor's cabinet, a wonderful dresser which solves nearly 90 per cent. of the lonely man's troubles and lengthens the days of the married woman's worries for collar buttons and other furnishings.

The Jordan Marsh store is rich in Christmas goods, a cornucopia of Christmas joys and bargains. But the Jordan Marsh store is always attractive, always, as the guide-book says, an "all-the-year-round" resort. That's because the Jordan Marsh Company meets every season - it comes.

TWO OVERCOME BY GAS; IN HOSPITAL

Two men were overcome by gas in a lodging house at No. 45 Clarence street early today. They were taken to the City Hospital, where it is said they will recover. The men are Richard Hansen, thirty-three years old, whose home is at No. 144 Harvard street, Cambridge, and Alexander Bellamy, sixty years old, who lives at Clarence street address. It is supposed that the gas jet was turned on accidentally.

A White Elephant.

Haroun Al Raschid, one of the wisest and greatest rulers the Orient has ever known, is even his admiration for Emperor Charlemagne, presented him with a white elephant. In these days the earnest gift.

By taking Dr. Hartshart's Vegetable Compound you can speedily regain your health, which will be worth more to you than a white elephant. I WOULD GO BACK TO THE GLORIOUS COSTUME OF THE MIDDLE AGES"

—Mark Twain

The "Glad Raiment" of the Middle Ages.

How Mr. Twain might look in a revival of the "glorious and gorgeous" period of men's attire, according to the idea of a Boston American artist.

"Nothing is more absurd, ungraceful and uncomfortable than modern men's clothing, day or night, and at night man wears the most ridiculous of all—evening dress.

"I would go back to the Middle Ages for the glorious, gaudy, gorgeous costumes of that time; back to the days of tights and helmets, back to the days before buttons were invented, when people had to lace on their clothing."—Mark Twain in interview on men's dress.

MOTHER AND 3 CHILDREN ILL FROM COAL GAS

Mrs. Annie Hughes and her three children were overcome by coal gas at their home at No. 8 Heath place, Roxbury, today, and were sent to the City Hospital. The children are William, fifteen years; Thomas, eleven years; and Frank, nine years.

Soon after Mrs. Hughes had given the children their breakfast, the youngest complained of feeling ill. Soon after the other two children complained, and then Mrs. Hughes herself felt the effects of nausea.

Calling one of the neighbors, a telephone call was sent to Dr. Nolan, who found that all four were badly affected when he arrived. Dr. Nolan had the windows of the house thrown open and then discovered that coal gas was escaping from the stove.

Two ambulances were called and the sufferers were sent to the City Hospital. It is said that their condition is not regarded as serious.

100 CARDERS GET INCREASE; AVERT STRIKE

FALL RIVER, Dec. 10.—The threatened strike of the approximately 100 hands employed in the card room at No. 6 mill of Matthew C. D. Borden's Iron Works cotton mills failed to be called at noon today, for the reason that the card room workers have been assured by Mr. Borden of New York that they, like all the other employes of the Iron Works, are to get a 10 per cent. increase in wages.

Some time ago, before the other mills got around to seeing it that way, Mr. Borden sent word over that because of the general prosperity of cotton manufacturing he was going to restore the wage schedule of 1905. That meant a ten per cent. raise all around.

The carders in No. 6, however, learned that their raise was to be only from five per cent. to seven per cent. They met on Saturday and threatened to come out at noon to-day and stay out until they got their share. Mr. Borden sent word over that they must have it. Hence, no walkout.

Out side of the card room operatives, there has been no dissatisfaction at the Iron works.

PRESIDENT IN REPLY DENIES STORER CHARGE

Refutes Statement That He Sent Message to Vatican in Behalf of Ireland.

SENDS LETTER TO ROOT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—President Roosevelt to-night made public a long letter addressed to Secretary Root, giving correspondence between the President and former Ambassador Bellamy Storer at Vienna, and Mrs. Storer, in which he says that Mr. Storer's refusal to answer his letters and the publication of various private letters justified the ambassador's removal; that Mr. Storer's publication of private correspondence was "peculiarly unfortunate," and that he (the President) had stated with absolute clearness his position and the reason why it was out of the question for him as President to try to get any archbishop made a cardinal, though expressing his admiration for Archbishop Ireland, as well as leaders of the other denominations.

Says Facts Suppressed.

"He says he thinks it well that the members of the Cabinet should know certain facts which he (Storer) either suppresses or misstates." He says he did not resent the action of the Storers "until it became evident they were likely to damage American interests."

He says Mrs. Storer urged him to give her husband a Cabinet place, and that she stated Mr. Choate at London and General Porter at Paris were not proper persons to be Ambassadors, suggesting her husband in that connection.

This letter is dated December 2, six days before Storer's pamphlet became public.

The President incorporates a letter from Postmaster-General Cortelyou contradicting the statement that President McKinley had commissioned a gentleman to ask the Pope "as a personal favor to him," and as an honor to the country" to appoint Archbishop Ireland as a cardinal.

Denies Message to Pope.

Cortelyou says the late President never made any such request. The President declares that Mr. Storer's statement that he authorized any such message to be delivered to Pope Pius is untrue. He says that he never received a letter from Ambassador Storer, giving an account of his visit to the Vatican, and of the message he personally gave the Pope on behalf of Mr. Roosevelt.

The President's action to-night follows the publication of the "confidential pamphlet" which Mr. Storer last week sent to the President, the cabinet and the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

President Roosevelt declares that no hint or intimation of the Bellamy Storer pamphlet containing the correspondence between the President and Mr. and Mrs. Storer was given out at the White House.

Says Pamphlet for Public.

The former ambassador, the President stated, not only sent his "open letter" to members of the cabinet, but to at least a dozen members of the Senate and House. He added that Mr. Storer had an desire to keep the contents of the pamphlet a secret, and that undoubtedly it was his desire that the letter and He way into print.

INITIATION HUB MAN'S DEATH?

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 10.—Mystery surrounds the death in Azusa of Charles D. Sharp, who, at initiation into the Odd Fellows lodge there, December 1. Delta Fellows themselves have demanded a probe of the case.

Sharp, who is said to have been the son of a Congregational preacher in Boston, had been a resident of Azusa fifteen years. After the initiation he was ill in bed for three days. The fifth day he died.

Rev. Charles E. Richardson, Sharp's pastor, declares that a man has told him that Sharp told of being roughly treated at the initiation.

The only clergyman in Boston of the name of Sharp is Rev. Arthur P. Sharp of No. 15 Hill street, Dorchester, a Congregationalist.

Calling one of the neighbors, a telephone call was sent to Dr. Nolan, who found that all four were badly affected when he arrived. Dr. Nolan had the windows of the house thrown open and then discovered that coal gas was escaping from the stove.

Two ambulances were called and the sufferers were sent to the City Hospital. It is said that their condition is not regarded as serious.

5 BURGLARIES BAFFLE POLICE

SPRINGFIELD, Dec. 10.—Mystified by a series of five bold burglaries the entire force of policemen are on plain clothes duty in an attempt to apprehend the burglars. In every case a safe has been robbed. The combination was knocked off and nitro-glycerine was inserted in each instance.

CROCKER WILL BRIBE CASE ON TRIAL TO-DAY

KILLION AND CRONIN BEFORE JUDGE SHERMAN IN CRIMINAL COURT.

The trial of Mathew F. Killion and John W. Cronin, members of the Crocker will case jury, who are charged with accepting bribes, begins to-day in the Superior Criminal Court before Judge Sherman.

The government is represented by Assistant District Attorney Michael J. Dwyer.

The defendants were members of the jury that tried the contest case over the will of the late Uriel H. Crocker, a lawyer, in the Probate Court last year. Crocker left a fortune of $800,000 to his second wife, who, before her marriage, was Miss Ann H. Pike, his stenographer. The son of Crocker by his first wife, contested the will, but it was allowed, and later ruled to the Supreme Court, who ordered a retrial, and the will was finally broken.

"Resolved, That owing to changed conditions, it has been found necessary to stop all free delivery of messages, and this company will absolutely discontinue its free delivery system on January 1, 1907, and no free service whatsoever will be performed thereafter. Outstanding franks will be honored to and including December 31, 1906."

XMAS THRONGS CROWD STORES AND OFFICES

Postmaster and Express Managers Put Extra Help to Work.

The 150 extra clerks in the postoffice and every express company in Boston taking a large forces of package handlers, are experiencing the busiest Christmas rush for New England began to-day. In the freight rooms of the Adams Express Company at the South terminal, and the rooms of the American Company at the North station, and at the general exchange express offices in Kingston street, Pakerman and Devonshire were placed at work side by side with the other freight handlers to watch for any attempted thefts of valuables during the rush of the next two weeks.

In plain clothes men from the Lagrange street Station also patrolling the express district bounded by Kingston, Essex, Lincoln and Summer streets for the purpose of preventing robberies from loaded express wagons, which have been extensive in past years.

Holiday trade in the retail shopping district began to-day in real earnest. The are retail stores were crowded from the hour of opening. Every street car here its load of shoppers, many of the retail districts for a hard day's work, and all of the evening trains were crowded with out-of-town people coming to Boston for their holiday necessities and presents.

In the postoffice, which more than any other place is thronged during the Christmas holidays, Postmaster Hibbard to-day put on a force of 150 extra men to assist the regular employes in handling the great rush of business. Special package wagons and package men, as well as extra mail order clerks, will be at work for the next two weeks.

BOY HELD FOR DEATH; $3,000

William G. Tyler, colored, a bellboy at the Hotel Vendome, was to-day arraigned before Judge Sheeman of the Superior Court on a charge of manslaughter in causing the death of Jogin Sennett at the hotel on November 24 last. Tyler pleaded not guilty and was held in bonds of $3,000, which he has thus far been unable to furnish.

Sennett, who was also an employe of the hotel, was wheeling a truck loaded with steamers of water along the hallway of the hotel, when a wheel passed over his toes. The latter is alleged to have taken a knife and with the jagged edge to have stabbed Sennett.

MOTHER DYING, 4 OTHERS HURT, IN JUMP AT FIRE

Haverhill Woman, with Baby in Arms, Leaps 40 Feet. Others Follow.

OTHER NARROW ESCAPES

By Boston American Leased Wire.

HAVERHILL, Dec. 10.—As the result of a fire panic in a tenement block here, one woman is badly injured and may die, and four others are badly hurt. All are at the Hale Hospital to-day. When fire broke out in the cellar of the block yesterday, about 100 tenants rushed about in wild panic. Driven back by the smoke, three live persons jumped from the third story window to the courtyard below, a distance of forty feet.

Mrs. Casper Wickar, four left ribs broken, right ankle fractured, back sprained, internal injuries.

Caspar Wickar, scalp wounds.

Mary Wickar, two and one-half years, body cut and bruised.

Mary Wickar, seventeen years, right ankle broken, head cut, body bruised.

Annie Fein, collarbone and right arm broken, internal injuries.

Many Taken Down Ladders.

The block is a three-story wooden building at Nos. 134, 136, 138 River street. Nine families, all foreigners, occupy it. A lighted match, carelessly dropped in rubbish in the cellar, is said to have been the cause of the blaze. The damage is about $100.

About forty of the tenants, mostly women and children, were taken down ladders in safety by the firemen. Others tried to slide down a clothesline, which broke under his weight. Then Mr. Fanfil jumped out of the window after him, the mother taking the baby in her arms.

Four Other Blazes.

John D. McLaughlin, first assistant corporation counsel of Boston; his wife, five children and two servants, were driven out early yesterday by a fire which destroyed their home at No. 253 Bellevue street, Roxbury. A defective flue is thought to be the cause. The damage is about $4,500.

Two persons were rescued by Patrolman Herrigan of Cambridge in a fire at Watertown early to-day. They were Mrs. Frank Mazza and her child, who live near the Mt. Auburn bridge. The father and two other children got out all right. The fire was quickly put out.

Fire starting from an overheated boiler in the planing mill of Shaw & Binley at Medford yesterday caused $2,500 damage.

One horse perished in a fire early yesterday in a stable at No. 328 Dorchester avenue, used by Daniel J. Collins. Four other horses were saved. Damage $500; cause unknown.

A. F. OF L. CALLS LABOR TO FIGHT BIENNIAL VOTE

State Branch Votes to Send Circulars to Every Affiliated Union in Massachusetts.

The executive board of the State Branch, American Federation of Labor, representing organized labor of Massachusetts, went on record yesterday as being vigorously opposed to biennial elections at a meeting in Central Labor Union headquarters, Wells Memorial building.

Secretary Dennis D. Driscoll was instructed to send circulars to every affiliated union in the State, requesting that they give their united and immediate support in opposition to the effort being made by the corporations and trusts to place the government further away from the people by having State officials elected every two years instead of one, as at present. Secretary Henry Abrahams of the Central Labor Union informed the executive board that the body he represented had adopted resolutions unanimously opposing biennials, and desired the co-operation of the State Branch in heading off the elections movement.

Three more labor organizations took action yesterday condemning biennial elections. They are:

State Branch Steam Engineers.
Street Cleaning Employees.
Bill Posters' Union.

On motion of retiring President A. W. Haddell, the Massachusetts State Branch, International Union of Steam Engineers, representing 2,800 members, went on record as being opposed to State officials being elected every two years. Like action was taken by Sanitary and Street Cleaning Employes' Union No. 149 at a largely attended meeting in Wells Memorial building, and by Bill Posters and Billers' Union No. 17 at No. 905 Washington street.

'L' AND SUBWAY TRAINS IN N. Y. IN FLAMES

Tongues of Fire From Ice-Covered Third Rail Ignite Tinder-Box Cars.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—Owing to the ice-coated third rails in the subway and on the elevated roads to-day, two trains filled with passengers, one on the Second avenue elevated at the Seventy-second street station and the other in the subway at One Hundred and Forty-fifth street and Third avenue, caught fire from great tongues of flames that flashed from the steel-covered tracks.

Hundreds of passengers in each train became panic-stricken and rushed for safety.

An alarm of fire had to be turned in for the blaze on the elevated, while the subway guards attacked the blazing woodwork of the rear coach on a six-car train with axes and sand.

On the Brooklyn bridge the feed wires over the north roadway snapped because of the ice, causing a fifteen-minute delay, and every line of transportation running into New York, carrying thousands of workers, was delayed from fifteen minutes to an hour.

The conditions had been brought about by one of the worst ice and sleet storms New York has experienced in many years.

Milk and food products were held up, trolley lines crippled and merchants by scores sprawled on the sidewalks, many being seriously injured.

Dear Sir:

Replying to yours of Oct. 8th beg to say I have recently returned from a trip to the Gulf Coast country, which I found as published. I bought at Lyford, which I believe to be a grand country with certainly a great future.

"A Grand Country With a Great Future"

Here is the verdict of one of the men "from Missouri," who have visited the Texas Gulf Coast Country.

He said "show me" and he was shown.

I want to "show you."

I would like to show every man who wants to make money and enjoy life that he can do both in this country of ideal climate and most productive soil.

I will show you that $200.00 to $500.00 an acre is being made on land such as you can buy now for $25.00 an acre.

I will send you booklets containing photographs and full particulars about this country.

I will give you the names and addresses of men in the Texas Gulf Coast Country who are making a success of it there.

You can write to these men and they will tell you what they are doing.

Then I will show you this country itself by taking you there and back for $25.00 from Chicago, $20.00 from St. Louis, and proportionately low rates from other points.

The Texas Gulf Coast lands are only about 48 hours from Chicago, so it will be easy for you to go and be shown, and then it will not be a question of opinion or say-so.

No other section of the country excels this in productiveness. You can raise crop after crop the year around—no long months of useless expense and weary idleness.

Crops are always certain because you have plenty of pure artesian water on your own property for the cheapest irrigation.

An Ideal Climate

The climate is delightful. It is like that of Southern California—no extremes of heat and cold, and practically no winter. There's game in abundance—every opportunity for outdoor pleasures.

This land is safe, because it is from 10 to 15 miles inland, and from 50 to 100 feet above tidewater.

You can buy at a low price if you act promptly, because the country has just been opened up through the discovery of artesian water, and the building of a railroad.

GILLETTE SENTENCED TO DIE WEEK OF JAN. 28

MOTION FOR NEW TRIAL DENIED; MOTHER SAYS "HE IS INNOCENT."

By Boston American Leased Wire.

HERKIMER, N. Y., Dec. 10.—Chester Gillette, convicted of the murder of his sweetheart, Grace Brown, at Big Moose Lake in the Adirondacks, was to-day sentenced to die in the electric chair at Auburn prison in the week beginning January 28. A motion for a new trial was denied.

Gillette will be taken to Auburn prison within the next ten days.

Mrs. Louise Gillette, mother of the prisoner, who arrived in Herkimer to be with her son during the ordeal of his sentence, to-day gave out this statement:

"Chester is innocent. There is no truth in the story of confession. He wrote that telegram answering mine regarding an alleged confession, but it was not sent as a praising God this morning for answering our prayers.

"Chester never looked better in his life. He sleeps well and eats well and has no anxiety about the final outcome.

SEND $20,000 TO AID HOME RULE FIGHT

United Irish League Forwards One-Fifth of Amount Pledged.

PLAN ACTIVE CAMPAIGN

The second instalment of $10,000 of the amount pledged at the convention of the United Irish League of America in Philadelphia in October, to be raised for the Irish parliamentary fund, was forwarded to Ireland to-day from Boston by the national treasurer, T. B. Fitzpatrick. This makes one-fifth of the $100,000 pledged which has been sent in five or six weeks.

Owing to the excitement attending the recent congressional, State and city elections throughout the country no special effort was made to follow up the work of raising subscriptions immediately following the meetings addressed by T. P. O'Connor, M. P., and later by Messrs. Hazleton and Devlin. The amount already sent in Ireland has been in the main voluntary subscriptions of those who attended these meetings and form a very creditable total up to the present.

As soon as the rush attending the Christmas holidays has passed, however, the branches of the United Irish League throughout the country will take up actively the work of raising the balance of the fund, and there is no doubt that within a few months the pledge will have been fully redeemed.

The new session of parliament will probably open early in February, and as the measure of Irish national self-government to be introduced by Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman will have precedence over all other legislative affairs at the coming session, an active campaign will be conducted by the United Irish League in America and Canada in support of the Irish Parliamentary Party during the period the bill will be before the House of Commons.

POPE ACTS; FRANCE NOW FACES RELIGIOUS WAR

CATHOLICS ARE ORDERED TO YIELD THEIR CHURCHES ONLY TO FORCIBLE ATTACKS.

PARIS, Dec. 10.—France to-day faces the gravest possible crisis in the conflict between the government and the Catholic Church and the beginning of a disastrous religious war is feared to-morrow, when the new separation law goes into effect.

The Pope at the eleventh hour has issued instructions to the clergy and people not to take advantage of the law of 1881, by applying to Mayors or the police for permission to hold services.

His Holiness counsels passive, peaceful resistance and advises priest and people not to yield their church property and the keys of the church safes to the civil authorities except when force is used.

Obedience of these commands will result in grave conflicts between the government and the Church. The premier, M. Clemenceau, the premier yields.

This order has created a sensation, both in government and Catholic circles.

Cardinal Lecot, archbishop of Bordeaux; Archbishop Germain and others who already have advised compliance with the law of last June hastily instructed the Jewish priests of their diocese that their former advice is null and void, and yesterday all the churches of Paris bishops had received letter bases read the letter from Cardinal Richard archbishop of Paris, communicating the decision of the Holy See concerning services in the churches, but abstain from any publication until Cardinal Richard's own instructions in view of the order issued by the prefect of police that no permit for the present the employment of ceremonial draperies at marriage or funerals.

To Pray for Protection.

The church wardens, whose legal existence expires the last day of the year, resign from the pulpits of the various churches. The protection of God was also asked in prayers.

President Clemenceau and M. Briand, minister of public worship, were in conference all day. There is no sign of the government being forced to resort to extreme measures. M. Briand said to-day that the separation of the Pope was ordinarily unexpected.

Militant Catholics are rejoicing at the stern attitude of the Pope.

LABOR NEWS

UNION LABEL COUNCIL — UNITED PRINTING TRADES — BOSTON, MASS. — 96

After hearing committees from over fifty labor organizations throughout the State, the executive board and the legislative committee of the State branch, American Federation of Labor, yesterday, decided to renew last year's efforts for the overtime, picketing and public opinion bills and to do everything possible to secure the passage of all three. The overtime bill decided is exactly the same in text as that defeated last Spring.

Various suggestions to benefit street car men were referred to a committee consisting of State President Edward Cohen, Secretary Treasurer D. D. Driscoll, Frank K. Foster and F. Sheehan, State president of the Street Railway Men's Union, who will draft a bill calling for either the right of nine-hour days and the licensing of motormen.

The legislative committee was instructed to draft a bill calling for more frequent boiler inspections by the State and a public record of each inspection at the State House.

In consequence of many reports of violations of the eight-hour law by city and town forms, President Cohen and Secretary Driscoll were chosen a committee to ask once complete evidence and begin court proceedings against the cities. Some of the boards have asserted that the State eight-hour law has been rendered almost inoperative by an opinion by Attorney-General Malone, it was decided to call a conference this week in Wells Memorial building of all the local unions interested to decide on steps to have the law amended.

President Cohen and Frank K. Foster were chosen to confer with President Hoddell of the Central Labor Union, Chairman Hayes of the executive board and Chairman committee of the A. F. of L. and George Prendergast in regarding a bill to restrict the power of the courts in industrial disputes, which was drafted for the C. L. U. by Mr. Williams.

It was decided to make an effort to have election day made a holiday, and it was decided to reinforce the State employment office.

REJECT B. & A. PROPOSITION.

A proposition from the Boston & Albany Railroad officials for the ending of the Allston car workers' strike, which has been on for two months, in the form of an order to take back a part of the men under old conditions, was rejected by the strikers yesterday.

Wednesday night a benefit for the strikers will be held in Braintree Hall, Brighton, the State branch, A. F. of L., will this week issue a circular to all unions of the State to financially assist the strikers so that a complete victory can be won.

TO ASK MORE INSPECTORS.

At the State convention of steam engineers' unions held yesterday in N. A. S. E. Hall, No. 705 Washington street, it was decided to present a bill to the Legislature calling for more frequent inspection of boilers and an increase in the force of inspectors to a sufficient number to properly do it.

William M. Beck, of Boston Engineers' Union No. 235, was elected president; I. J. Brady, of Worcester, vice-president; Henry Gibbs, of Brockton, secretary, and Michael McNerney of Boston Union No. 4, treasurer. Each local will elect a member of the State executive board.

Rockport was chosen as the place for the next convention, and the second Sunday in June, 1907, as the date.

LABOR NOTES.

Boston Photo Engravers' Union No. 3, yesterday elected John E. Gill president; E. E. McDonald vice-president, Charles A. Allen financial secretary, Samuel Moses recording secretary John W. Bolters treasurer and William Gordon sergeant-at-arms.

Richard W. Garrity was elected president of Boston Lasters' Protective Association and Peter Sampsonides recording secretary, yesterday.

Thomas J. Melhern, the delegate of the Newspaper Protective Union to the American Federation of Labor convention in Minneapolis made his report to the Typographical Union yesterday and was enthusiastically applauded.

LOWELL MILL WORKERS WILL ASK MORE PAY

LOWELL, Dec. 10.—Mill operatives of this city will make a request to the agents for an increase of ten per cent. in wages. Such action was decided upon yesterday at a meeting of the combined textile committees. The delegates of ten local unions met to discuss the situation, which the various officers say is based on the wage question by their leaders.

Charles A. Miles, a national organizer of textile unities, said:

"We have come to the conclusion that it is time for the people to take the initiative in the matter of wage increase. The cotton manufacturers decided that 9 cents shall be sent to the agents asking for the increase. The operatives in Lowell are better organized than they have been for three years. The manner in which the agents will have to take notice of the textile unions, whether they want to or not. And it means that unless the increase ultimately is allowed, the unions will be able to make trouble. Further than that I have nothing to say."

AUGUSTA, Me., Dec. 10.—Textile workers representing nearly every mill in Maine gathered here yesterday to form a State organization. Officers were chosen and the greater part of the day was consumed in a discussion of the referendum, child labor laws and the eight-hour day. It was voted to ask the Legislature to enact laws concerning these matters.

WOMAN SAVES AGED ACTOR FROM FLAMES

Poor "Hi" Davis, the old-time actor, whose poverty-stricken and forlorn condition was brightened a bit at Thanksgiving by theatrical people and other generous ones who heard of his pitiful state, was badly burned to-day by fire, resulting from an over-heated oil stove in his little attic room at No. 6 Temple street, West End.

That Davis is alive at all is probably due to the brave work of Mrs. Rollie M. Browne, his landlady, who managed, in spite of her years, to drag the old man from his smoke-filled room. Davis is in the Relief Hospital, suffering from multiple burns and partial suffocation. The landlady is also under medical treatment for nervous shock. After she had saved Davis she herself was overcome by hysteria.

"It is away past the time when he can brighten and please audiences the way he was wont to do. He is practically bedridden. Mrs. Browne looks after him as best she can. One of the little attentions he has to cheer his last days is the use of the oil stove to keep the filling cold out of his chamber.

About 10 o'clock to-day Mrs. Browne smelled smoke, rushed to Davis's room and found him lying face down on the bed to keep himself from being smothered. The fire from the stove was igniting the woodwork of the bed.

After Mrs. Browne had dragged the old man out into the hall she raised an alarm of fire. A chemical stream extinguished the flames, which damaged the room to the extent of $50.

CORTELYOU HINTS PUBLIC OWNERSHIP

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 10.—Hints looking toward public ownership of public utilities, and of federal banks, are contained under the system of postal savings banks, postal telegraph, postal telephone and parcel post in the annual report of Postmaster General Cortelyou has caused much comment here and stirred the trusts deeply.

Persons interested in the great telephone, telegraph, express companies and financial institutions which control the earnings of the funds of the small depositor are specifically referred to, it is all means.

The paragraph in the report referring to the postal savings banks follows progress toward these improvements will open the way for investigations to determine the feasibility of the adoption of many important policies of administration, reduction of postage, both domestic and international, postal savings banks, parcel post, postal telegraph and telephone, and others—the merits and defects of all of which should have the not distant future the fullest consideration."

NEGRO KILLED BY POLICEMAN

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—After firing two bullets at Policeman Charles Campbell and Roundsman Henry Steul, John Gatewood, a negro, who acted as keeper of a boarding house in Long Island City, was shot and killed by Roundsman Steul.

One of the bullets fired by Gatewood struck a dense tattoo on Campbell's coat and glanced off, piercing the policeman's cheek and ear.

The shooting occurred in a wooden shack used as a boarding house for negro tunnel employes. The policemen were attempting to quell a fight among the forty men in the place at the time.

WHISK OFFICER IN 'WHIRL' DOOR

LYNN, Dec. 10.—Caught in a revolving door while trying to raid a gang of gamblers yesterday, one of the police force was kept going in a foot race until he was overcome with nausea. Every one of twenty nicely trapped gamblers got away.

The raiders went to the old carriage factory at No. 4 Mechanics court, where the game was in progress.

The place was surrounded, and then action began. As the first bluecoat showed himself a number of the gamblers made a rush.

The policeman who had been left to guard the entrance stepped into the revolving door to get a look into the room. He was caught. The whirling did not stop until every one of the gamesters was beyond recall.

ON GUARD FOR BOGUS VOTERS

A sensation was sprung in Chelsea today when the no-license committee stated that it had had two detectives working the past two weeks, and that they had secured the names of several men registered from the different hotels there, who, they assert, are registered in other cities.

The no-license committee announced that it will have plain clothes men stationed at the polls to-morrow, who will arrest any of these illegally registered voters if they attempt to vote.

HAD PREMONITION OF HER SON'S DEATH

Chester, Pa., Dec. 10.—Having a premonition of her son's death, Mrs. Samuel Strayhorn received a letter from the postmaster at Merida, Yucatan, stating that he died and died of yellow fever. The deceased son, Albert W. Ellright, who was twenty-seven years old, left Chester in July last for South America.

Unaware of the fact that her son was dead, Mrs. Strayhorn wrote an affectionate letter to him, but the missive came back, unopened, with the intelligence of her son's demise.

M'LEAN IS BADLY HURT IN RACE

Hiawatha at Six-Day Race

By W. F. Kirk.

"NOW they're off!" said Hiawatha,
"Now they're started at the Garden."
Started on a six-day journey
That will take its fraction nowhere.
As I watched the sturdy riders
Entered in this thrilling contest
I was vividly reminded
Of the first great six-day struggle
Which was held, my gentle readers,
In the land of the Dacotahs.
Long before New York was founded,
Long before the whooping Gas Twirl
Came and cast its blight upon us,
Young Chief Skin-the-Sassy Muskrat
Challenged Carve-the-Marcel-Wavelet
To a combat of endurance.
Each was noted as a runner
With the singing powers and cooing
Of old Plenty-Howl the Stray Wolf.
Round and round the little village
Round and round our ring of wigwams,
Ran young Skin-the-Sassy Muskrat,
Ran young Carve-the-Marcel-Wavelet.
Six long days it was, my readers,
From the first faint hinsh of morning,
When the early riding squonnus
Shouted, "Pound along, old red shanks!"
Till the night was dark and gloomy,
When the white owl and the nighthawk
Hooted, "Jog along, you suckers!"
Six long days, without a let-up,
Six long nights, without a blanket.
On they dashed around the village.
Followed by the shouting throngs
Who had trusted them for laundry
Groceries, meats and other trifles.
One by one the tradesmen perished
Perished in their tracks, exhausted.
"Thus did Skin-the-Sassy Muskrat
And young Carve-the-Marcel-Wavelet
Sidestep being spread for nought—
Thus the six-day race found favor
In the land of the Dacotahs.

gained a terrific pace after MacLean's terrible accident on "Hoodoo" curve, the gruesome curve on the Twenty-sixth street side of the Garden.

MacLean was rushed to the New York hospital in an ambulance. It is reported that he may die.

MacLean's pal fell came after another crash only a half hour before, when five of the riders banged into each other on the same turn and slid into an inextricable heap at the bottom of the bowl, yelling. One of the riders was lured over the traffic. Just as MacLean was later. He struck two young women and several men, who were thrown to the floor, but not seriously hurt.

MacLean Setting Pace.

MacLean had been leading J. J. Clarke, the Australian, Leon Georget, Urban MacDonald and Ed Rupprecht, the German-American, in a sweeping turn, as he approached the "Hoodoo turn," MacLean seemed a bit shaky, then his handlebars shook, the front wheel swerved, the rider swerved, and hardly before anyone realized it, he was flying over the top of the curve to the ground.

MacLean landed head first. If it all had not happened so quickly the crowd would have gone mad. He hit the floor very hard, and it is probable that MacLean striking on the banked floor on his head would have been killed on the spot. As it was, he glanced against the rail, the crowd, and this broke his fall somewhat.

After MacLean came Hollister, who tumbled and fell. It bounded among the scattering crowd and was picked up a few minutes later a complete wreck.

The four men, who had been nosing behind MacLean swerved to the right of the track as MacLean swerved to the left, but they were so close together that Georget's front wheel grazed Clarke's rear tire. The moment both were rolling over and over, down the bank, with MacDonald and Rupprecht following. They were able to get on their wheels again and pick up the race.

Worst Spill of Race.

A half-hour previously occurred the worst spill of the race so far. The six-teen men in the race were bunched together. Whizzing along at the end of Twenty-Sixth street, Edwin McDonald swerved from the perpendicular and as he reached the "Hoodoo Turn" was flung over his handle bars. He struck Hollister and threw him with terrific force against the rail. He was picked up and when carried to his cot wept like a boy.

His trainers were unable to pacify him, and he was led weeping to his camp, his brother relieving him. Upon examination by Dr. Creamer it was discovered Meanea was suffering from a broken collarbone.

This catastrophe, following on the probable fatal injury of Hugh MacLean, threw a fit of gloom around the garden. It is said that John Bedell will train for the remainder of the race with Bobby Walthour, MacLean's partner. After the fractured bone had been set, Dr. Creamer announced that the injured man would be compelled to withdraw from the race.

DIAMOND GLEANINGS.

President Ban Johnson of the American League is quoted as saying that the season in his league will begin about April 11. That is one week after the mighty Ban had decided upon a schedule of 154 games.

Over in St. Louis they are importuning Manager McAleer to quit Lajoie and let him have his position on the American League team. Lajoie is getting old, and is full of gall, but he is a good ball player.

* * *

The St. Louis Nationals have offered Catcher Murray to the Indianapolis team. Murray did good work for the Cardinals in the outfield last season and would have a strong tool to him if he were with the Hoosiers.

* * *

Mike Donlin is settling into condition rapidly by going in for fancy skating in New York. He will be ready for fielding practice early in season, with Bergen in center and Shannon and Brown fighting it out for right.

* * *

Charley Carr, who was with the Reds last Spring, will be relieved of the management of the Indianapolis team next season. Watkins again taking hold. Carr will be field captain of the team.

* * *

Manager Hughes of the Reds has written Business Manager Rowland requesting him to arrange for the Reds to leave for Medina Springs on March 10. The team will begin its Spring practice on March 12.

* * *

It is reported that O'Leary and Schaffer will be the only old fielders whom Hugh Jennings will retain on the Detroit team next season. All the others will be sold or traded during the Winter.

SATURDAY.

B. A. A. fight, Tommy Yeung Ems vs. Cuk Russell, Philadelphia.

Local fight fans can awaken to something choice on the bill this week, as the Murphy-Baldwin battle at the Lincoln A. C. on Wednesday night is a topliner.

There will be enough action in this bout to make up for any other affair since Melody and Walcott clashed and a duplicate of that strenuous encounter is what to expect, save in the result. There will be no limited fighter inside the ropes, as Baldwin and Murphy are a couple of the sturdiest youngsters who ever wore handkerchiefs with shaves and muscles like steel.

Both are clever on getting together it is quite natural that when they do get set in front of each other they will make up for lost time and nothing will be wanted from the first crack out of the box.

Means Much to Matty.

It's strictly business between these two little gamesters to get the scalp of the other and it's the crucial moment in Baldwin's career, as his ability will be the fire and the Hub depends on him as the best of the 130-pound boys to bring about Murphy's downfall and break his chain of successive victories.

Murphy, on form, looks invincible, yet Baldwin has shown that he can extend the full round and the same thing is just as likely to happen with Murphy, though the only one conclusive, that they are about so evenly matched as to make the bout seem the full distance with Murphy, though he says the chances are that Baldwin will be able to handle himself with better speed and cleverness. Murphy was nailed a draw when the Kid and Baldwin met, but the latter has come up by leaps and bounds in fighting knowledge to certainly following.

There are three preliminaries, and they promise some fast fighting. Freddie O'Brien is matched to go six rounds with Purcell in the semi-final, which is scheduled to go eight rounds. Ahearn and Dunn are matched to mix in the wise ones, who are seeking a cut that Dunn will knock him out.

Purcell and Ahearn.

The six-round bout between Jack Purcell and Jack Ahearn ought to make the fur fly, for they are aggressive middleweights, with plenty of strength and speed. The other preliminary will bring together King Dodo and Jack Seiloff. They are also down to travel six rounds.

Jack Johnson After Jeff Like a Chicken. Hard Hitting Infighters

BURNS AND SQUIRES WOULD DRAW

BY W. W. NAUGHTON.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 10.—The year is drawing to a close and stock taking will soon be in order. The season cards with a leaning towards facts and figures will size up the remnants in the several pugilistic divisions and tell us what we have in hand to start anew with.

The doping out of the heavyweight division will not call for an undue consumption of midnight oil. Nothing has been done towards filling Jeffries shoes in twelve months past. The two California saplings, Berger and Kaufmann, have not astonished the world. Berger, feeling that some physical flaw made him the prey to the excitement that is inseparable from Queensberry competitions, has turned to pursuits less calculated to rack the nerves.

Kaufmann, big enough and brave enough in all conscience, is restrained by the firm hand of Billy Delaney. The veteran adept at ringcraft thoroughly and has decided that it would be unsafe to send the youngster against a cutter and slasher like O'Brien or compact fighter like Tommy Burns for at least another year.

Burns appears to be the only heavy who has made any decided gains during the year. Of course the question of superiority between the Canadian and Jack O'Brien is still in abeyance and will remain so until O'Brien's arm mends and another battle is fought, but it is a fact nevertheless that Tommy has pushed forward into the front rank.

Burns is Even Money Now.

In the affairs with O'Brien, Burns was a 2 to 1 short order. If the pair were signed for a return date to-day, Burns would at any rate sell at even money and the difference in price would represent the increased respect Burns has wrung from the public by his dead heat with O'Brien.

As O'Brien has taken care of Fitzsimmons and Kaufmann, as Kaufmann has defeated Berger, and as Burns has split even with O'Brien, Tommy and Jack still stand out as the two heavyweights best entitled to box for the honor of representing the United States in a contest for the world's championship. In saying this I am keeping well in view that there is a dusky skinned gladiator named Jack Johnson vainly trying to break into the charmed circle of championship candidates.

"You can lead a horse to the water, but you can't make him drink," is a trite old adage and as O'Brien and Burns appear to have Mr. Johnson bluffed, signed and buried to such an extreme that they won't even mention his name it appears to be quite useless to push the negro into the question.

How Johnson Might Get Even.

Johnson revenge would come, of course, if Jeffries agreed to meet him, for with the black man and the affairs merchant matched for the blue ribbon, Tommy and Jack would be made to feel that they hadn't a monopoly of championship disputes.

One effect of the Burns-O'Brien contest should be to cause the chances of Australian Bill Squires to be regarded quite seriously. As long as the impression prevailed that a lightning striker like O'Brien could dispose of all men of the "typical slugger" brand, things did not look very bright for Squires in this neck of the woods.

But Burns has shown that a man of the typical slug or conformation can make things mighty interesting for a cracks-back boxer like O'Brien, and as Burns and Squires are much of a sameness in build and fighting methods, we begin to wonder whether Squires cannot do as well as Burns. One thing is certain, if Burns had defeated O'Brien a match between Burns and the Australian would have been worth a journey to witness.

Squires, as I have taken occasion to say in other articles, is a greatly improved boxer since his affair with Burns. Both Hart and Jack O'Brien it looks as though his confidence has increased. In the go with O'Brien he asked no quarter and gave none.

Squires is a Game One.

Now if he intends to present the same front to all opponents in future, he will find in Squires a man after his own heart. It is said that the Australian is as game a man as ever shed a sweater. He delights in close fighting, and such being the case, he is readily to be seen that a spat between him and Burns would be one of the fiercest affairs of recent years. It may be that the Philadelphia Jack will present a pair of arms and shoulders to Squires that will be able to prove that Tommy's showing at Los Angeles was only a fluke in the pot and that in a more thorough test "science" will not prove a match for strength.

We must wait and see.

It looks like taps for p. Terry McGovern as far as freedom and fighting are concerned. The unfortunate fellow has decidedly been off balance mentally for quite a while, and it is more than probable that the severe boxing contests he has been up against within the past year have increased his malady.

What he should happen to recover temporarily from his distress it is to be hoped that he has friends legal enough to see to it that he is not allowed to participate in further ring events.

Some of the harpies who have taken advantage of McGovern's intervals of sanity to proclaim him "as good as ever," and sign him up with Tom, Dick and Harry, should be forced to sample hard labor as a means of gaining a livelihood.

Terry's case reminds me that instances of mental aberration as the climax of eventful ring careers are notably few.

Conquerors fighting actors, for instance, and reflect what a number of mumbling fools their reason. Why is it, when the excitement and temptations of the life of the successful fighter are taken into consideration, that more do not go the same route as Terry McGovern? Some may say that the fighter has a natural predisposition to mental aberration, but I am of the opinion that, in my opinion, is why very few of the guild end their careers in a madhouse.

Animal Courage in Pugs.

I have an idea that it is the animal courage of fighters that dominates all their other attributes and keeps them from becoming mental weaklings. A man can never become very much of a fighter, of course, unless he is plentifully endowed with pluck and plenty of pugnacious fighting spirit, makes a man level headed, even though his stock of intelligence may be limited.

When did you see a pugilist in action divert his attention from the work before him, no matter what would may be in evidence outside the ring? I have often wondered when the attention of a fight throng was attracted to an impromptu outside the cause why the throng did not turn to take a peep at what was going on.

I was never more impressed with the firmness of purpose with which pugilists are endowed than I was one night at Tattersalls in Chicago. While two lightweights were boxing the cry of fire was raised. It was not in the building but mighty close to it and the crowd was panicky when the red glare filled the windows. But the fellows inside the ropes did not consider their heads about it. The excitement grew and waned, but Skinner fared and reeled and the lightweights just lifted and hammered each other throughout all.

The grit which is much of a fighter's stock in trade is something that is met with him even after his muscles have become flabby and his heads have lost their cunning. It helps him to squelch the bogie feeling from ill-health and dissipation and get the old distance with Murphy, though he says the chances are that Baldwin will be able to handle himself with better speed and cleverness. Murphy was nailed a draw when the Kid and Baldwin met, but the latter has come up by leaps and bounds in fighting knowledge to certainly following.

There are three preliminaries, and they promise some fast fighting. Freddie O'Brien is matched to go six rounds with Purcell in the semi-final, which is scheduled to go eight rounds. Ahearn and Dunn are matched as slated for defeat by the wise ones, who are seeking a cut that Dunn will knock him out.

Purcell and Ahearn.

The six-round bout between Jack Purcell and Jack Ahearn ought to make the fur fly, for they are aggressive middleweights, with plenty of strength and speed. The other preliminary will bring together King Dodo and Jack Seiloff. They are also down to travel six rounds.

FURNITURE MEN AFTER SHAWMUT BOWLERS' CUP

Interest in the Retail Furniture Bowling League is growing more intense as the season advances, due perhaps to the many surprises that have developed in the scores.

The one big surprise of the league is the work of the Shawmut Furniture Company team which last year finished every time in the furniture trade that it bowled against. This year the Shawmuts seem to have run into foul weather and stand at sixth place in the league.

Another incentive to interest in the game is the Shawmut trophy offered by Andrew J. Morse, manager of the Shawmut Furniture Company. This trophy is to be bowled for each season, the winner this year being compelled to fight for its retention next year. The trophy is a handsome sterling silver cup with ivory handles.

PULLIAM BACK FROM ABROAD

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—Harry Pulliam, president of the National League, who went away after the season closed, as he said, to "forget the game," came back yesterday on the American liner New York. He looked cheerful, hearty and confident.

The annual meeting of the league begins Tuesday noon at the Hotel Victoria, and Mr. Pulliam is pretty sure of re-election, his friends say. Mr. Pulliam did not talk baseball politics, but said the game's season can game had become a fixture in England.

GARCIN BEAT PETTITT 3 TO 1

In his second match in this city Ferdinand Garcin, indoor tennis champion of France, defeated Tom Pettitt of Boston at the Tennis and Racket Club in their single match at court tennis.

Pettitt seemed unable to fathom the Frenchman's service and hard shots along the walls.

Garcin won three of the four sets.

EXPULSION BY NATIONAL ASSOCIATION MEANS LITTLE

BY EDWARD E. COGSWELL.

Ed Sanders and George Spear expelled by the National Trotting Association without this ending of the "gold cup" scandal the public will now be content. But if the parties concerned in the affair think that its membership do not enforce the penalty of expulsion any better than has been the case in past years, much of the merited punishment will be missed by the guilty men.

Right in New England, as well as over the Grand Circuit tracks, the rules of expulsion, as declared by the rules, have been only lately enforced. Horses can be entered after having been expelled, aside from not being in the name of the owner, while working and jogging their horses, and practically enjoying all the privileges except those of actual contest.

At the race meetings their stables of horses were quartered and entered under the owners' names in the jogging events scheduled on the programme. Visitors at the tracks in the forenoon saw the expelled trainers and drivers in their sulkies busily working out their horses, even to warming them up for the afternoon's sport. Then when the racing began the same driver, one in good standing, would take the mount behind the expelled one's horses.

Did Everything but Drive.

Between heats the expelled trainers and drivers were engaged in either looking to the jogging out of their horses, or rushing into the hometrotch when the field of horses were sorting to their final positions in the sulky instructions as to what they desired done to the beast; frequently after the conversation to rush back to the betting booth in order to get down another bet on their horses.

All of this is not very edifying to the spectators knowing the status of the men in question, nor is the moral influence exerted in the right direction on those trainers and drivers in good standing. What is the use of observing the straight and narrow path when on every side is to be seen the cynical enjoying of the spoils of privileges on the rack track, except the one of driving in races?

Another side of the question, too, is that of the expelled owner. It is an open joke for an owner to receive the severest penalty that the National Trotting Association can publish—because all that he does in this instance is to pass to another in good standing his bill of sale of his property. And his horses are raced the same as before, while no lasty enforcement can be made at the tracks reaping every benefit he had previous to getting into trouble.

Stop Fake Sales.

There is no way of getting back of the bill of sale, but if the rules were upheld and the expelled owner forbidden the entrance to a race track it is certain that the sale of his horses would be bona fide in place of a fake, for in this instance there would be nothing in his racing them when right out in the cold, cold world.

Nothing is more explicit than the rules on expulsion and suspension. Rule 51, Section 4, of the code of the N. T. A. reads:

Whenever the penalty of expulsion is prescribed in these rules it shall be construed to mean the conditional exclusion and disqualification from any participation, either directly or indirectly, in meetings and races of the course and grounds of a member association.

And Section 9, Rule 51, of the N. T. A. specifies that:

Any member wilfully allowing the use of its tracks to an expelled man or horse, after notice from the secretary of the National Trotting Association, shall, together with its president, secretary and other officers, be subject to a fine not exceeding $500 for each offense, or suspension.

Nothing is more explicit than these rules. Expulsion having been meted out, it is impossible for the expelled party to enforce it. Nothing is more subversive of order, as applied to the sport, than the idea of trainers compounding with misdemeanor while in charge of confidential horses for stable companies. By all means, for the good of racing, should all of the rules be strictly adhered to, for as other to receive the severest penalty that the National Trotting Association can publish—because all that he does in this instance is to pass to another in good standing his bill of sale of his property, and his horses are raced the same as before, while no lasty enforcement can be made at the tracks reaping every benefit he had previous to getting into trouble.

HUB AUTOISTS BACK FROM NEW YORK'S BIG SHOW

BY J. C. KERRISON.

Most of the Bostonians have returned from New York, where last week they were part and parcel of the greatest automobile show that ever was held in this country. The independent makers and dealers are thoroughly well satisfied with the way things went, and are now looking for new fields to conquer. Frank E. Wing arrived home over the road about noon yesterday, bringing the Marmon over the snowclad roads. Mr. Wing took the boat to Fall River, and about nine o'clock yesterday turned over the engine of his air-cooled Marmon and headed towards Boston. The weather was cold and stormy, the mercury being low in the glass, and yet nothing daunted Mr. Wing, accompanied by George Lyon of the city of Brockton and C. L. Fisk of the International Tire Company, started for Boston. The trip to this city was made in two hours' running time.

Mr. Wing was right out of the ordinary throughout the trip, and the passengers were quite comfortable in their furs and with the top raised. The chassis and motor forming part of the Marmon exhibit at New York will arrive here to-morrow.

The board of directors of the Bay State Automobile Association held rather a lengthy and interesting session at the clubhouse to-day. Many matters pertaining to the club and looking towards the closing of the year's business were transacted. When the present board retires at the forthcoming annual election it will have the satisfaction of knowing that during its term of office it has placed the association in a position second to none in this section.

PARKER WILL MEET MULLER

To-morrow night at the Columbia, after the burlesque entertainment, Harrey Parker, who gave Karl Busch more than he bargained for last week, will meet Muller, champion middleweight of Germany. The match will be one of interest, as the champion of Canada a week from to-morrow.

The Columbia wrestling bouts are finding great favor with the public. Harrey Parker, the Brockton wonder, can always be depended to put up a stiff game, and those who saw last week can attest, when he made the big Germain appear like a novice during the greater part of the struggle, and took him off his feet many times than could well be counted.

Dorothy Dix Asks Whence Are to Come the Right Sort of Husbands to Wed the Independent Business Woman

New Woman? How About the New Man?

BY DOROTHY DIX

THERE is a new woman.

She is not the moustrosity pictured by the humorist—a creature who wears bloomers, and short hair, and men's shirts and collars, and who goes off of a night to club meetings, while her poor, downtrodden husband washes the dishes and walks the baby.

The real new woman is an exceedingly good-looking, well-dressed young person, who is following some gainful occupation with profit to herself and the world, who is bright, breezy, capable and independent, and knows very well what she wants of life.

She has a heart, but she also has a brain. She can love, but she can also see straight. She will not like to marry, if the right man came along, but she is incapable of becoming a slave. She wants to be another's, but likewise she wants to be her own. She wouldn't marry a man whose opinion she didn't respect, but she has no idea of becoming the echo of any one. She wants to merge her life in another's, but she desires to retain some part of her own individuality.

All this has brought about a curious state of affairs, and created a demand for a new man as a suitable mate for the new woman.

Novel Argument

A RECENT newspaper article was devoted to discussing a concrete case of this kind.

A young woman, who was an expert and highly-paid stenographer, was engaged to be married to a young man getting only a small salary, and he demanded that his fiancee should give up her situation upon their marriage, in order that she might keep house for him, that is, do the cooking and washing, and scrubbing, and cleaning of the small flat that was all his means enabled him to provide—for, of course, hiring a servant was out of the question.

The girl refused on the ground that she knew nothing whatever about housework, having gone immediately from the school room to her profession, and that she had no taste for domestic pursuits, whereas she had an undeniable talent for stenography.

She further pointed out that the combined earnings of the two would enable them to have every comfort of life, whereas on the wages of the man alone would force them to an existence of grinding economy, and she wound up by saying that she could not see why, because she married, she should be forced to give up doing the one thing that she liked to do, and found it profitable to do, in order to do the thing that she hated to do, and that any Shawkwick hired girl could do better than she could.

Logically Right

AS far as the logic of the situation went, the girl undoubtedly had the best of the case, but men are not amenable to logic when it interferes with their own wishes, and the man replied that he wanted home cooking and home cooked such as his mother used to make, and she could either give up her place or give up him.

The girl didn't desire to do either—hence these tears—and the suggestion that a new man will have to be raised up to marry the new woman.

Nor is this idle speculation.

As far as women are concerned, in the immortal words of Mr. Cleveland, "it is a condition and not a theory that we confront." There are several hundred thousand extremely successful young women in this country, who are not only making their bread and butter, but are making jam an inch thick on it.

It would be the greatest possible misfortune to society for these women not to marry and rear families. It would be a great misfortune to the women themselves to be debarred from the sweetening and broadening influences of family life, but it is manifestly impossible that they should marry on the same platform that their grandmothers did.

Their grandmothers were poor girls who had never been taught how to earn a dollar, and when they married poor men they went into the kitchen, naturally and rightly, because it was the best thing they could do to help their husbands, but it is ridiculous to think of putting the woman who can earn $25, or $35, or $50 a week to wrestling with pots and pans and the washboard.

New Man Next

SHE is a skilled laborer, and she would waste her ability at such work just as much as a fine doctor or lawyer would if he gave up his profession in order to split the stove wood or do the chores about the house.

Aside from this, there is the waste of time and money that a woman spends on fitting herself for an occupation if she has to give it up the minute she is married because her husband wants her to cook for him.

To a degree money gives the happy possessor of the purse the privilege of ordering terms. If a man is rich enough to offer a woman a good salary, he can usually make the issue with her about giving up her work; but if he isn't, and the best he can do is to give her menial drudgery labor in exchange for well-paid brain work, he is certainly a contemptible egotism and selfishness that she does well to escape.

Having achieved financial independence for herself, a girl does not have to marry for a home. She can have a home after companionship, and it really looks as if men and women who have working girls would have to climb up to that point of view. Hence the necessity for a new man.

TO WHAT ALTITUDE MUST MERE MAN CLIMB IF HE WANTS TO MARRY THE GIRL WHO BASKS IN THE SUNSHINE OF INDEPENDENCE?

Beatrice Fairfax Scolds Girls on Their Winter Dress

By Beatrice Fairfax

GIRLS, this is going to be a scolding, so you may as well prepare to take it like good little girls and promise to do better in the future.

It's a scolding about shoes and the ridiculous way in which you dress your feet.

Last Saturday, you know, was the coldest day of the Winter so far. I walked about at the hour when most of you were going to business.

The wind came tearing over from the west, biting its cruel way through even the warmest garments.

I was horrified to see that about one-half of the girls I met wore low shoes. Their necks were swathed in furs and most of them carried muffs, but, oh, how could their ankles must have been!

With many of them it was not because they could not afford to buy boots, for they wore hats elaborately trimmed with feathers, flowers, etc.

They did not look pretty. How could they with pinched cheeks and red noses? They were dressed for show and not for comfort or health.

All the smart furbelows in the world won't make you look pretty, my dear girls, unless you are properly clothed underneath.

Warm undergarments are far more important than the ostrich feather on your hat. Serviceable boots are more important than beads and chiffons.

I know it is a great temptation to buy the pretty things, the things that make a show; but the point is that those things wouldn't make the most beautiful person in the world look pretty if she were blue and shivery.

One of the quickest of all ways to catch cold is by having the ankles uncovered. Some foolish girls even wear thin, openwork stockings. Could there be a better bid for pneumonia and consumption?

Added to everything else, it is poor style. Good dressing is suitable dressing, and by no stretch of imagination can any one suppose that low shoes are proper for Winter wear.

What you need is a pair of stout, neat boots. Slippers and low shoes are very pretty for house wear, but they look very badly in the street at this time of year.

I noticed one girl in particular yesterday. She wore a gay little red feathered hat, a dressy coat, a pretty set of squirrel furs, a short skirt and high-heeled low shoes. He face was blue with the cold, and I am quite sure she caught cold. I don't see how she could help it.

Dear little, silly girl! I felt so sorry for her with her mistaken ideas of the sense and fitness of things.

Take this little scolding to heart, girls, and do dress yourselves properly. Show common sense and buy necessary clothing before pretty, useless frills and fluffs.

Take Care to Keep the Windows Clean

WHAT an important matter this is and how careful every good housewife should be to inspect her windows so that her house may appear attractive. For if the windows are dirty the outside world will present a very gloomy setting to the occupants, while the beauty of the blue sky and the golden sunshine will be quite lost to them. But if the windows are kept clean and bright none of the beauty of God's world will be shut from the dwellers in that house.

And you, though we take much pains and work very hard to keep the windows of our dwelling houses clean, how many of us are there who give the same attention to the windows of our souls?

Our thoughts are windows, and if we allow this part of our mind to become choked up with feelings of hatred, malice and envy, the windows of our soul will be dirty and black, incapable of allowing what is good, right and noble to light a way into our hearts.

Character in the Face

No child is too young to understand the importance of keeping house windows clean; at the same time, mothers should point out to their boys and girls that the windows of their bodies, the thoughts which direct their words and actions, also need constant watching and care.

After a heavy storm, mud stains will be found splashed on the panes of glass, and the careful housewife will see to it that her windows are at once cleaned. And so with the mind. Storms of passion, wrought through quickness of temper and selfishness will come, and then it is that the windows of our souls must also be cleaned and polished. If they are dirty we can see nothing, and we are apt to speak when we should be silent.

It has been often remarked that the character of the inhabitant of a house can be told by the aspect of the windows which reflect the light from their dwelling. So this is true, equally so is the saying that a person's character is stamped on her face.

What Example Does

A dusty, ill-kept room will have dull windows, with dirty curtains and blinds; while a well-ordered, cheerful looking woman will show plainly by her eyes and by the bright face that she is not keeping the windows of her soul bright. Influence is the greatest gift given to us. If there is a row of ill-kempt, dirty houses, and suddenly one house enters and commences to be clean, sweet and bright, the others in the same row will often follow the good example set.

We really good mother and wife will not be content with clean windows to her house, but will see to it that the windows of her soul are bright and reflecting only the best of thoughts, so that she may be better able to help those who come under her sway.

Prize of $2 Awarded Every Day for Best Letter to Santa Claus

IT seems that many of the little girls and boys of New England never stop to think what a busy old elf Santa Claus really is and how greatly he loves neatness.

It's not right in them to impose on the old fellow at this, of all times in the year. They wouldn't do it, either, if they were to stop and think for a moment what they are doing.

Many splendid letters have already been received, but there is room for improvement in many others that have come. Don't write your letters on both sides of the paper; Santa Claus has no time to be turning letters over these days.

When you write to Santa Claus, telling him what you want, write it plainly and as well as ever you can, and write only on one side of the paper. Don't forget to put your address on the letter. How is Santa little Christmas money of their own, Claus to know where you live? He and will help a great deal in buying knows a lot, but now that so many presents.

Just think of this! A prize of $2 will be given for the best letter every day written by either boy or girl. Today's prize winner is to be announced to-morrow. This prize every day of the 22 for the best letter received gives the young folks a chance to earn a

This is a great chance. You are to write to Santa Claus, telling him what you want for Christmas, or what you want to give mamma and papa, grandma, grandpa, brother, sister and the baby.

Santa Claus wants to know what you want for Christmas. He also likes generous children who think of others besides themselves, and he wants to know what you think your brothers and sisters and parents want, too. Don't forget your friends.

It will not hurt your chances for a nice gift if you tell him about some other little boy or girl who you are afraid he may miss. It's good to think of others just as much as you do of yourself, and Santa Claus loves children of that kind.

Now, when you write make your letter short, well written and clean and neat. Be sure and give your name and address and write on one side only of the paper. Address your letter to Santa Claus, BOSTON AMERICAN, No. 32 Summer street, Boston.

What Boys and Girls Want for Xmas

EARNS HIS OWN MONEY

GOOD morning, Santa Claus. I thought there was no real Santa Claus, but I guess there is all right. You can bring things to boys and girls you don't know, can't you? Do you mean it, Santa Claus? My name is Charles Holland, and I am eight years old. I have been a pretty good going errands. I am saving to buy press pads. I would like you to bring me mamma a box of handkerchiefs, and papa a nice pipe, and grandma a pongee shoulder like mamma's, and grandpa a piece of tobacco—the kind he smokes, see for. Now for my brother a sled, and a sled for me, too. I am going to give twenty-five cents to the Salvation Army, too. They are good to poor and girls that have no mamma and papa.

CHARLES W. HOLLAND.

LEANS TO STICKPIN

DEAR SANTA CLAUS:

For my mother I should like to have a nice little sewing table. My father would like to have a pretty necktie, a small leather bag for my aunt, a pretty stickpin for my grandfather, a little pin for each of my two sisters and a silk handkerchief for my brother. I think that is all. I am still, your little friend,

ETHEL SUTTERMEISTER. 12 years.
No. 247 Beale street, Wollaston.

MUST HAVE TOBACCO

DEAR SANTA CLAUS:

I haven't any brothers nor sisters, but have a grandma, grandpa, mother and father. I would like my father to have a necktie, a pair of suspenders and a pair of penders. I shall ask Santa to bring grandma a piece of statuary and a gold thimble. Mamma should have a brica-brac cabinet, with brica-brac for it.

Grandpa must have a new pipe, tobacco and a box of cigars.

I want some presents to buy gifts for my friends. Yours affectionately,

HAZEL M. FISH.
No. 431 Whipple street, Fall River.

WASTES FEW WORDS

DEAR SANTA CLAUS:

I would like a suit of clothes. For brother a story book, for sister a doll. I'd give papa a watch and chain and mamma a necklace. Grandpa I'd give a walking cane and grandma a shawl. Yours truly,

LEWIS HARRIS, 11 years.
No. 605 Parker street Sewing Centre.

REMEMBERS OTHERS

DEAR SANTA CLAUS:

When I think that Christmas is so near I begin to want some things, both to give and receive. I always wanted a big doll, and if I can get one with a pretty dress and hat, it will be all I want. My mamma wants a skirt, and I hope my papa will get a hat.

I hope that the many poor children may be well remembered for lots of presents, as this always makes their life of poverty and misery easier to endure.

Wishing all a happy Christmas, yours truly,

ADELAIDE M. BUSH.
No. 27 Medford street, Malden.

HELP THE POOR

DEAR SANTA CLAUS:

I would like you to bring me for Christmas a bicycle and an air rifle.

My sister Margaret wants a doll carriage. Mother wants a pair of warm slippers to wear evenings, and for mamma a pair of gloves.

Now, dear Santa Claus, I want you to remember all of the poor children who have not got any father or mother to get them nice things. I will try and help you to remember them here. Yours truly,

ROBERT S. FORSAITH.
Bradford, N. H.

READS THE ADS

DEAR SANTA CLAUS:

I thought I would write a few lines. I am a little girl 9 years old, and I saw the ad. in the BOSTON AMERICAN, so I thought I would write to you.

I would like for grandma to have a few handkerchiefs, grandpa a pair of collars and cuffs, mamma a pair of kid gloves and for myself a gold bracelet. Well, I guess this is all, as I remain as ever,

MURIEL RICE.
No. 165 River street, Waltham.

WANTS BOOK OF POEMS

DEAR SANTA CLAUS:

I am going to tell you what I want you to bring to my home for Christmas. First for grandpa, a pair of house slippers, grandma a shoulder shawl, papa a pair of bedroom slippers, mamma a head kerchief case, sister a sewing box, brother a gun, baby a rocking chair, and for myself a doll and new dress. That is all for this Christmas.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

SHABBY TREATMENT

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

The young man of twenty-two and I am very much in love with a pretty lady of twenty-one, and we have been keeping company for about two years, going out. I called three times after that and she told me he was going. I found out that she has been keeping company with another young man, and that when she told me she was going out she did not go out, but had the young man call on her. I am very much and would like to marry her.

I THINK you are foolish to run after her any more. She is not treating you kindly, and it is only waste of time going to see her.

UNSATISFACTORY

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

The young lady I am now keeping company with I love very deeply, and I know my love is returned, but it seems to me that love alone will not make a happy home. She does not know how to cook, sew or keep house, and she is not willing to learn, but has a great desire for dress and fashionables. I have also asked her to help me save my money, but she will spend it in one way and spend it in another, thus getting the best of me. I have also asked and pleaded with her to keep my present position, but she has a manufacturing plant not bearing a good name, and has been offered to help her better her position, but of course, only at home, being that she can pay and feel as much as she likes, time not being forced to work. She is also a very unselfish girl, and she will always stick to a lie. She does very little of what I ask her to do, but above all she is so affectionate and seems to love me very much. Do you think she really loves me? And if she loved me wouldn't you think she would do these favors for me?

F. E.

I CANNOT imagine a much more unsatisfactory sweetheart. You say she loves you, but, if so, she certainly has a very peculiar manner of showing her love. In the first place, if I were you I would insist absolutely on her leaving her present place of employment. She cannot stay there and escape imbibing some of the lax ideas followed there. You would never be happy with a wife you could not trust. She will make a poor wife unless she learns to tell the truth and to be more neat in her ways. Let her see that you do not care to marry her unless she does better in the future. To marry her as she is now would be a great mistake.

A HOW TO AVOID HEADACHES

A LARGE number of headaches are due to eye-strain. Any defect of the eyesight will cause headache if the overtaxing or "eye-strain" is not corrected by suitable glasses.

The headache due to eye-strain is worse after using the eyes for reading or writing, and it is generally absent in the morning, after the eyes have been rested during sleep.

A sufferer from long sight, short sight or astigmatism is constantly straining his eyes in the endeavor to focus or bring within his range of vision the object which he is looking at, and headache will most certainly result. Any one afflicted with constantly recurring headache should visit an oculist at once and have his eyes tested.

One of the greatest mistakes possible is to choose one's own glasses at an optician shop by the aid of that futile expedient of looking through

Another cause of headache is some form of the penalties of modern civilization. The eager pursuit of pleasure, the spirit of competition, the desire to go one better than other people, have converted social life into a perfect where there is no rest for the mental worker. We must have pleasure, and we find it, though, for the most part, in practically the opposite of the beautiful in nature. It is feverish and hectic, and fills the nerves with excitement instead of the calm and tranquillity that should be the result of real rest, and the wonder is not that headaches exist, but that so many people escape the penalty of their folly.

People like to declare that their headaches and other symptoms of nerve exhaustion are due to overwork. Why, there is nothing like good, hard work for preserving the health and spirits—for keeping the young and a woman good to look at. Work, every one and everybody, once in pleasures that are at the root of the matter. A tendency to worry unduly over what an ordinary good health we designate trifles, or an obstacles to be overcome in the course of the day's work, is a sure sign of nerve exhaustion, and worry is a fruitful source of headache.

It is unnecessary to point the moral or advise a remedy in these cases.

To cure the headache remove the cause, cultivate a quiet mind and a tranquil spirit, conserve your energies for real work instead of frittering them away in the vain pursuit of pleasure and amusement.

No. 67 Eastford road, Southbridge.

CURRY OF MUTTON WITH RICE

FRY one large onion, cut fine, in one tablespoonful of lard. Mix one tablespoonful of curry powder, one teaspoonful salt, one tablespoonful of flour, and stir into it the butter and onions. Add gradually a pint of hot water or stock. Let the compound of less consistency than mince and brown them in hot fat and then add mutton to the same and simmer until tender; place the meat on a hot dish and arrange a border of boiled rice around it; slices of cold cooked mutton may be used instead of raw meat.

MRS. ANDERSON.
No. 26 Summer street, East Boston.

CHEAP SALAD DRESSING

ONE well-beaten egg, three tablespoons of sugar, three tablespoons of vinegar, three teaspoons of mustard, two teaspoons salt, one teaspoon flour, half cup of vinegar. Mix well and cook until it thickens. This can be used for cabbage.

MRS. JENNIE ST. PIERRE.
No. 182 Pleasant street, Lawrence.

BRIDE'S CAKE

THREE eggs, yolks and whites beaten separately, one and one-half cups sugar, beat both of sugar with half cup of butter, the other with yolks; mix all together and add one-half cup of milk, two cups flour, two teaspoons baking powder; whites of eggs should be added last; flavor with one teaspoon vanilla; bake in four tins.

THE GIRL PEOPLE LIKE

SHE has so much to do that she has not time for morbid thoughts.

She never thinks for a moment that she is not attractive, nor forgets to look as charming as possible.

She is considerate of the happiness of others, and it is reflected back to her as from a looking-glass.

She never permits herself to grow old, for by cultivating all the graces of heart, brain and body age does not come to her.

She awakens cheerfully in the morning and closes her eyes thankfully at night.

She believes that life has some serious work to do, that the serious work lies very close to the homely, every-day duties, and that kind words cost nothing.

She is always willing to give suggestions that will help some less fortunate one over the hard places in life's journey.

She is her own sweet, unaffected, womanly self—therein lies the secret of her popularity, of her success.

FRIDAY'S SHOPPING PICTURE IS IDENTIFIED

The Original of This Snapshot Will Receive a Prize of $2.

Camera Man Snaps Woman Shopper Every Day Even in the Height of the Xmas Rush.

EVERY day in the rush of Christmas shopping the Camera Man will be busy. Daily he snaps some woman shopper in the neighborhood of some store patronized by BOSTON AMERICAN readers. When the photo appears in print the original receives a prize of $2 for identifying it. It's just like meeting Santa Claus in the streets, isn't it?

The photo of a woman shopper printed Friday was identified by Miss Grace Perry of No. 23 Cushing avenue, Dorchester. She received the award.

Watch for the Camera Man. He's apt to snap you any day.

Don't Play in the MORNING

Recreation Is Necessary, but It Is a Bad Way to BEGIN the Day

On the suburban trains, which every day bring thousands of men, young and old, into the city to work, you will see three or four games of whist going on in the smoking cars.

The brakeman carefully turns some of the seats for the players before they come in, and leaves boards and decks of cards where they can find them.

For a man who doesn't care to play cards to take the seats reserved for the players is considered bad form. If he doesn't vacate his place when the card-players scowl at him suggestively, the brakeman, who is paid by the players for his services to them, asks him to go.

All the way to town the whist players devote themselves to their game, analyzing every hand when it is done, and explaining how they could have done better if they had known what cards the other men held.

This editorial is not going to be a denunciation of cards. If men insist on taking their recreation INDOORS instead of out, cards serve as well as anything else. Whist is not so taxing on the mind as chess. Playing it MODERATELY is good schooling for the memory.

But to BEGIN A DAY'S WORK WITH ANY KIND OF A PASTIME IS A FOOLISH WASTE OF THE BEST HOURS OF THE DAY.

The young man who lives in the suburbs is fortunate. Every night he has fresh air to breathe. He has a complete change of associations after his day's work. The new environment that he gains ought to give him NEW IDEAS, and ideas are what make men successful.

But his country residence will do him no good whatever if he devotes the time occupied by his journey to and fro to games of whist.

At night when he goes home HE NEEDS REST. Time then to forget the office or the shop a little while if he can, to read the evening papers and see what the rest of the world is doing, and to prepare his brain for the calmness and freedom from worry that are necessary to useful sleep.

IN THE MORNING is the time to review the failures and shortcomings of the day before, and plan to prevent them from happening again.

It is well to read the papers and see what the day's news contains. Then there should be steady, earnest thought about the tasks that are to begin as soon as the place of work is reached.

What are the best ways to do MORE AND BETTER WORK?

HOW ARE THE CONSEQUENCES OF YESTERDAY'S MISTAKES OR FAILURES TO BE MET AND OVERCOME?

WHAT NEW IDEAS CAN BE APPLIED TO THE OLD DUTIES?

HOW CAN THE HEAVY BURDENS OF OTHERS BE LIGHTENED A LITTLE?

The HOUR BEFORE WORK is the time to think over these questions and answer them if you can.

After a refreshing night's sleep the mind should be at its best.

The real work of the day has not begun. There is no minute attention to detail to prevent you seeing your work in prospective. No annoyances irritate you. No interruptions distract your attention.

Devote the hour on the train and ferry to PREPARATION. You will find that when you get to the office you will turn INSTANTLY to the thing that ought to be done and DO IT, not sit dawdling over your desk, still thinking about your last hand at whist, and wondering what to do first.

The day's work will be pretty well mapped out in your mind. The IMPORTANT things will seem important. The things that are merely routine will not be as insistent as the things that MUST be done.

The young man who begins his day's work prepared has the same chance to succeed as the general who goes into a battle prepared.

You would not think highly of a soldier whose idea of the best way to plan a great engagement was to spend the hour before it in playing cards.

The life of every man is made up of some three hundred LITTLE battles every year.

Some of them are sure to be lost, and this is as it should be, because TOO MUCH SUCCESS EXAGGERATES THE SENSE OF SELF-IMPORTANCE and the belief that victory is easy.

But the majority of them MUST BE WON, or the whole fight for success is hopelessly lost.

Prepare for ALL the little battles, and you will win MOST of them.

Play when you NEED play. Recreation is necessary. But NEVER KILL TIME.

If you play whist, play the game for relaxation or to cultivate your memory. AND FOR NO OTHER REASON.

But time is CAPITAL—in fact, the only capital most young men have to start life on.

TO WASTE TIME PLAYING CARDS, with the idea that you are helping to destroy the tedium of a half hour's railroad journey, is as idiotic as it would be for a man TO THROW MONEY INTO THE HARBOR on the plea that he had too much of it, and had to do something to relieve himself of the fatigue of seeing it so constantly about him.

Women Advocate Election of Mrs. Duff

No just person who has followed the successful career of the Boston School Board during the past five years and more, and who has the interests of Boston's schools at heart, but will be delighted to lend a helping hand, or, better still, give a helping vote at the coming municipal election for Mrs. Julia R. Duff, independent candidate for the School Board.

Citizens who have had time to read the papers and the doings of our public officials in general, mothers and fathers, school teachers and masters, and all others who have taken particular notice of the doings of the School Board meetings, cannot fail to recall the magnificent work of Mrs. Duff while she was a member, her term of service having expired a year ago with the passing out of the old School Board.

From her very entrance into the School Board Mrs. Duff became a power for good, and there are many teachers to-day who have reason to remember her with gratitude.

But, by no means the school teachers alone, but thousands of pupils have been benefited by her untiring zeal, loyalty to the schools, and her determination at all times to take a bold stand on matters in the interest of our public educational institutions and against many members who sought not to keep up the standard of the schools, but preferred to consider the interests and advancement of some individuals with selfish purposes, is fresh in the minds of all.

Mrs. Duff has ever stood for "Boston teachers for the Boston schools." She it was who, only two years ago, secured the passage of the order allowing Dorion boys who were college graduates to enter the Boston Normal School and at the end of a year be certified to teach in our public schools.

Mrs. Duff was at all times in earnest exponent of the best for Boston's schools, yet always careful and diligent to insure extravagant expenditures.

As a member of the School Board, Mrs. Duff ever manifested a most liberal and fair spirit, never questioned whether an applicant for position was a Jew or Gentile, Catholic or Protestant, but when citizens raised the race issue she ever fought it vigorously.

Mrs. Duff has at all times proven herself the friend and advocate of labor unions and their principles. She ever fought vigorously for the union label on school books and made many enemies among book concerns that oppose her to-day because of her opposition to them and their disloyalty to labor.

Mrs. Duff's qualifications for election to the School Board this year are many. She has had the experience, not only in the School Board, but she was a teacher nearly a dozen years before her marriage. She attended the public schools of this city, she has taught in the public schools and her children now attend the public schools.

There is absolute need of a woman on the Boston School Board. Mrs. Duff is a thorough student of all educational matters, has traveled extensively and knows, far better than any member of the board or any of its candidates, the needs of the schools and children of Boston.

Mrs. Duff is opposed solely by those influences which are everywhere shaking the foundations of our republic—trusts and immense wealth. Thousands of dollars will be spent in this campaign to defeat Mrs. Duff, but against this she has the good will of the people of Boston, and it is expected that she will have the votes of a majority of the people.

In the present School Board contest, the only nominee of the people is Mrs. Julia R. Duff. Mr. David A. Ellis is the nominee of controlled conventions composed of muzzled delegates who did not dare vote according to their own conscience or the people's wish. Not nominated as political leaders commanded them to do. Such forced nominations are no nominations at all, and do not express the wish of the people.

On election day when the voter gets in his little booth alone with his conscience, we call upon the fathers and mothers of the "little women," pupils and teachers, to protect and preserve the womanhood of their sisters and daughters by electing Julia R. Duff to the Boston School Board.

She Advises the Woman Who Pursues a Public Career to Cultivate Tact and Common Sense

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1906, by American Journal-Examiner

WOMEN'S clubs have done much toward enlarging the world's ideas regarding the ability of woman to be both feminine and intellectual. And woman's own delightful variety has come to the rescue and enabled her to keep her femininity while she used her intellect.

The one important thing for her to do now is to keep her good common sense uppermost in all phases of her public career, and—if she lacks this quality—to cultivate it.

Not long ago I dropped into a woman's club for a few moments at an hour which, I had been told, would be devoted to social intercourse—after all the exercises of the meeting were over.

I was a little late and expected to hear that amiable buzz of indistinguishable words blended into a harmony of discords, if one may use so paradoxical a phrase, which distinguishes an afternoon tea in America.

A Tired-Out Audience

INSTEAD, I saw a room filled with bored-looking faces, while one high-keyed voice on the platform read monotonously from a manuscript which seemed interminable. One by one ladies rose and tiptoed out, and when the paper was finally completed scarcely half an audience remained, and those who did linger for the social part of the occasion were evidently nervous and out of harmony with the occasion.

One tactless and inconsiderate woman had ruined a whole afternoon for a hundred people by her lack of good sense. Being given the opportunity to air her theories, she lost all ideas of the fitness of things and became a bore.

On another occasion I called to see a woman artist and asked her to show me some of her recent work. I had previously remarked that my call must of necessity be a brief one, but for one awful hour did that artist compel me to sit and view pictures in various lights, and then I was almost forced to walk over her opposing body before I could gain the exit, which she was determined I should not do until I had seen "just one more—her best."

Precisely as a woman has learned that it is not necessary or wise to be a down-at-the-heel "blue stocking" or a masculine crank because she has brains, so she ought to learn that she need not be a bore because she has intellectual freedom.

She has learned that talent, beauty and fashion may all dwell together in one feminine form, but she frequently seems to ignore the eternal obligation of being charming.

No woman can be charming who permits herself to be a bore.

To every woman pursuing a public career I would offer this friendly advice:

If you are called upon to make a speech or to read a paper, epitomize your ideas and leave your audience wishing you had said more.

Be Considerate

IF you are asked to show your paintings or your works of art in any line, show only a few, and make it easy for your callers to leave you gracefully. Never let your love for your own creations render you forgetful of other people's time, pleasure or convenience.

If you are requested to recite some of your own compositions or to sing your own songs, or to play your own music—give only homeopathic portions.

Better leave them hungry for more than to bore them for one single instant.

This is a busy age. There is so much to see, hear and do that few of us have time to read long books or to listen to long sermons or addresses, however brilliant or able they may be. Be concise.

THE EQUATOR

THE equator is a imaginary line running around the middle of the world, it is, in other wurds, the waist line of mother erth.

the way the equator came to be thare is a funny story, when the erth was all reddy to be put out doors & cooled off Adam & Eve, wich was the only peopul born that time, and What if this hot old ball shud explode like a Rushun bomb, let us tie a imaginary line around it, so each of them took hold of a line & started in different directshuns around the erth, after many days Eve got jest half way around & of course she had to wait a long time for Adam, he had to stop to git shaved & also met a angel which sed to him that Eve was the most beetiful thing she had ever seen, that made Eve feel pritty good & they went back to the garden but they dident stay thare very long.

thare have been many pritty things wrote about the equator such as

what the spicy breeze
keep the equator cool,
where every prospeck pleases
& only man is a fool.

thare is lots of heet at the equator, thare is only one hotter plais, of which I am too litted to write of
